Carrier Enterprise, Warships Steam to Vietnam

USS ENTERPRISE HEADS FOR SOUTH VIETNAM

SAIGON (UPI) — A U.S. Navy flotilla headed by the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise steamed toward South Vietnamese waters today at a time of severe military setbacks for the Saigon government, American diplomatic sources said.

The Enterprise and the nuclear-powered guided missile cruiser Long Beach slipped out of the Philippines today, and were to join nine smaller warships near the South Vietnamese coast by 8 a.m. Wednesday (7 p.m. EST Tuesday), the sources said.

A Pentagon spokesman in Washington, however, asked about the report, said, "There's just nothing to that."

The Pentagon spokesman said the Enterprise, the world's largest warship, had been scheduled to sail from the U.S. Navy base at Subic Bay in the Philippines today but was not going to Vietnam waters.

The disclosure of the ships' movements came hours after Communist troops drove diehard South Vietnamese defenders out of Phuoc Binh, capturing the war-torn province capital at the end of a five-day siege.

U.S. sources in Saigon said the Enterprise and the Long Beach would rendezvous at sea late today or early Wednesday with another guided missile cruiser, six destroyers and two destroyer-escorts.

They said it appeared there were no imminent plans to bomb Vietnam, but stressed such a decision could be made at any time.

Congress passed legislation in the fall of 1973 barring U.S. armed forces from carrying out any military activity "in, over or from the shores of" any of the four states of Indochina.

The law does not ban U.S. planes from flying over South Vietnam, however, and military flights based in Thailand do so routinely.

The fall of Phuoc Binh left Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops in control of all of Phuoc Long Province, the only South Vietnamese province entirely in Communist hands.

President Nguyen Van Thieu scheduled a speech to the nation tonight, but there was no hint of exactly what he intended to say.

Political analysts said Thieu likely would condemn the Communist capture of Phuoc Binh, but it was unknown whether he would speak of what support, if any, the United States has promised his government.

U.S. spokesmen in Saigon, the Philippines and at Pacific military headquarters at Honolulu refused to discuss the movement of the Enterprise or any other 7th Fleet ships.

"We're going to need luck on this one," one Enterprise officer told UPI correspondent Kate Webb at Subic Bay, where the giant ship had laid up for the Christmas vacation.

The ship called back 250 men from Christmas leave last weekend so the ship could sail today.

The Enterprise carries swingwing F4 Tomcat warplanes, the newest in the navy's arsenal. They are capable of carrying eight tons of weapons at 1,500 miles an hour.

U.S. sources said the two nuclear-powered vessels are to rendezvous with nine other warships off the coast of South Vietnam by Wednesday morning.

It was learned that another U.S. Navy task force is also operating somewhere in Asian waters, but its location could not be learned.

The aircraft carrier Coral Sea and an unknown number of escort vessels were believed to be in the South China Sea area, but it was not known how close the task force was to Vietnam.

The last U.S. bombing raid in South Vietnam occurred just before the Jan. 18, 1973, ceasefire, which ended America's direct military involvement but failed to halt the fighting between Vietnamese forces.

The task force sailed toward South Vietnam as Communist troops grabbed full, final control of Phuoc Binh, 66 miles north of Saigon.

The Communists fired powerful 130mm artillery guns at point-blank range this morning to smash the government's command bunker in the province capital.

Military sources said the Communists hauled the 130mm artillery pieces to within 100 yards of the concrete bunker this morning, lowered the long barrels and opened fire. The big guns have a range of up to 18 miles.

The surviving defenders, covered by dive-bombing warplanes, abandoned their last holdout and fled the province capital, 66 miles north of Saigon.

The Saigon command reported the city in flames and expressed fear for the lives of the 26,000 residents. A spokesman said the defenders were trying to fight their way back to government lines 25 miles away.

"The Communists fired thousands of artillery shells and rockets into the residential areas before the attack," a command spokesman said.

Tax Cut Coming, But How Big?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has decided on a tax cut to stimulate the economy but still is mulling over the size, administration sources said today.

He plans to recommend a $1 to $3 per barrel tax on imported crude oil to reduce consumption as part of the intertwined economy-energy program he will submit to Congress in the Jan. 20 State of the Union address.

Estimates of a tax cut range from 5 to 10 per cent. Much depends on how much Ford figures will be needed to stimulate the economy.

Sources said the President's program to deal with the recession will not be a "blockbuster" but it will be "hardnosed" and tough. They did say "It will be significant and impressive in displaying the President's leadership."

Ford has made some tentative decisions but still wants further study, he said. William Simon, the Treasury Secretary, William Seidman, executive director of his Economic Policy Board, and others were summoned to a morning meeting with the President.

Ford called a conference later today with Defense Secretary James Schlesinger who asked for an appointment on an undisclosed subject. The Pentagon budget is expected to be as high as $95 billion because of inflationary defense costs. Schlesinger also is a former head of the CIA.

Ford will send the fiscal 1976 federal budget to Congress around Feb. 3. By Jan. 20, he expects to have announced all his major decisions on government spending.

Meanwhile, in Detroit, New car sales plummeted 23 per cent in 1974 — the worst nonstrike year for U.S. automakers in 15 years.

The four U.S. automakers Monday reported a dropoff of more than 2 million cars from the previous year — 7,448,921 compared with a record 9,669,689 in 1973.

December sales of 429,198 cars were off 25.2 per cent from the previous year, marking the worst nonstrike December in 15 years.

The continuing sales downturn was expected to affect up to 300,000 workers by the end of the month — 40 per cent of the hourly work force.

General Motors was hit hardest, dropping 27.2 per cent from its record 1973 level and 24.1 per cent in December. It was the worst year for the nation's largest automaker since 1962 with the exception of strike-interrupted 1970.

GM felt the slump early in the year due to a gasoline shortage that pushed Americans toward small cars which the giant automaker didn't have. By the time GM had switched production to small cars, the country was headed for a recession and the small models piled up in dealer lots.

Historic Building Damaged by Fire

By MATT SPIRENG

KINGSTON
Fire late Monday night routed three families and caused extensive damage to a four-story building in the West Strand Historic District.

One woman was injured when she reportedly leaped from a third floor window to a porch roof and then to the ground to escape the flames and dense smoke.

Frank Simpson Jr., owner of the building which is included in the National Register of Historic Places, set his loss from the fire at "at least" $6,000 or $7,000.

Fire officials, who examined the scene today, said the probable cause of the fire was smoking in bed.

The blaze was discovered at about 11 p.m. in the second floor apartment of Alfred DeGroat. DeGroat, his wife, and reportedly as many as five children were home at the time.

One of the DeGroat children reported the fire on a nearby police call box.

The DeGroat family made it from the building uninjured. But before firemen arrived, Virginia Williams, 46, who occupied a third floor apartment with her husband Alphonso, reportedly leaped from a window to a second story porch and then jumped to the ground. She was taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance and was reported in "good" condition today suffering from a head injury.

Minerva Johnson, who occupied the third floor, was not reported injured.

Simpson, a general contractor, obtained the building — a classic example of the 1870-period architecture — about six months ago. He had begun work to restore the interior of the building, he said.

National Guard Is Summoned

GRESHAM, Wis. (UPI) — National Guard troops were ordered to patrol an Indian-occupied monastery today, relieving law officers who have been on the scene since the New Year's Day takeover. Gov. Patrick J. Lucey called out 250 guardsmen from Green Bay Monday night, marking his first official move to end the occupation, which has been marked by several exchanges of gunfire between Indian militants and law officers.

The Indians in the novitiate were told Monday night the National Guard would arrive by 6 a.m. Tuesday and they agreed to continue a ceasefire begun Monday "until further negotiations can be begun in the morning."

A report out of Lincoln, Neb., Monday night said Dennis Banks and Russell Means, two American Indian Movement leaders who headed the Indian occupation at Wounded Knee, S.D., were on their way to Gresham.

with a heavy outburst of shots Monday morning. But a cease-fire agreement finally was reached and honored and there has been no renewed violence. Thus far, there have been no injuries.

Lucey said that violence was not the reason for the call-up.

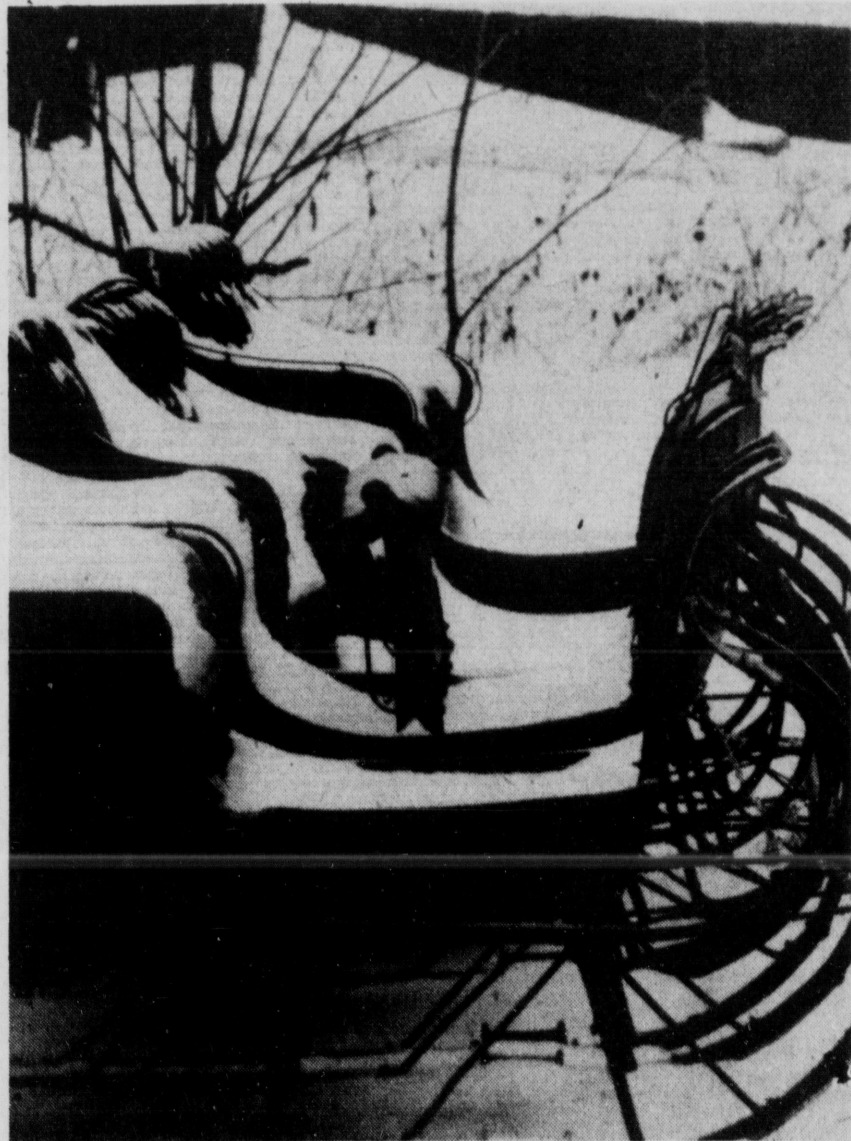

In addition to relieving local law enforcement officers, the guard also had authority to take over negotiations with some 50 members of the "Menominee Warrior Society" inside the Alexian Brothers novitiate.

The callout signalled a change in Lucey's policy. The governor previously had regarded the takeover as a purely local problem, but said now he will take a hand in the proceedings.

"As the commander in chief of the guard, I intend to order that every responsible action be taken to negotiate the termination of the present occupation of the abbey and to avert the tragedy of loss of life or serious bodily harm," Lucey said.

THE ONLY WAY TO TRAVEL ON SNOW

'Occasional Light Snow'

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON
The forecast called for "a chance of occasional light snow" Monday night.

Well, it wasn't "occasional" and it certainly wasn't "light."

Ulster County's fourth measurable storm of the season dumped five inches of wet snow on the streets of Kingston overnight; slightly more at higher elevations. It closed schools, snarled early-morning traffic and kept snowplows busy throughout the night.

Temperatures were expected to reach the mid-40's later today, and then plunge into the 20's tonight. And that indicates that local motorists may be in store for a bout with frozen slush late today and Wednesday morning.

But if it's any consolation, long-range forecasts promise that we've seen the last of falling snow for this week.

The storm started brewing in this area at about 9 p.m. Monday night, and then continued in earnest until just before dawn today.

BPW salters hit Kingston's main thoroughfares at about 10 p.m. Monday; snowplows replaced the salters at 2 a.m. today when the snow began to accumulate.

A spokesman for the Board of Public Works said that all the city's streets were "passable" this morning, although the tightly packed snow did cause some slipping and sliding. The BPW said all the city streets would be cleared by noontime.

Because all the city's BPW workers were drafted today to clear the snow, trash collection will be delayed one day for the rest of the week.

Outside Kingston, state and county highway crews plowed and sanded through the night. But despite their efforts, police said today that all roads in the area were slippery. Several minor accidents were reported.

School officials weren't about to gamble on the roads. All schools in the county were closed today, and all athletic contests scheduled for tonight were postponed.

Cancellations, in fact, were the order of the day for many groups and organizations in the county. But there were three important exceptions: the Olive Town Board meeting, the Saugerties Town Board's public hearing on the Barclay Heights Sewer District and the Kingston Common Council will all meet at their regularly scheduled times tonight.

Although no more than a pain in the neck for most people, the overnight snowstorm at least helped to revive the spirits of the sagging ski industry. Belleayre reported that six inches of new powder covered its slopes overnight; conditions at the state-run facility were described as excellent.

WINTER'S WONDERS ON MERRITT AVENUE

Carey Seeking Prosecution System Changes

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Hugh L. Carey will seek sweeping changes in the state's criminal prosecution systems when he outlines his programs to the legislature in his first "State of the State" message Wednesday.

A senior administration source said today Carey would call for an overhaul of correction, parole and probation services statewide in his talk to the lawmakers as they convene the 1975 session.

He also will ask the senators and assemblymen to help him make sure that "massive funds spent on law enforcement" are spent reasonably and that competing jurisdictions be taught or forced to cooperate with other agencies.

The governor will pledge "rigorous" enforcement of the laws against violent crime and will say that if present sentencing procedures are not tightened he will move to require more uniformity.

Priority treatment for violent juveniles will be sought from the Department of Mental Hygiene and delays in trials will not be tolerated.

Carey will ask, it was said, for a report from district attorneys across the state on the status of cases awaiting trial for more than a year. Progress reports on dispositions will be asked for on May 15.

In addition, the source said, Carey will demand that state agencies police themselves and also will ask for a report from the Temporary State Commission on Investigation and the Bureau of Criminal Investigation for reports on state agency activities by July 1.

Earlier, a source had said the new governor would propose a $10 tax credit for political contributions in an effort to broaden public participation in election campaigns.

In addition to calling for the tax credit, the Democratic governor also will tell the legislators he will eliminate "a plague" of "no-show" jobs, commissions and agencies.

The source said the governor would stress that any unneeded commission would be eliminated from the budget and that those commissions and bodies which were required will "continue under new circumstances."

The persons appointed to such commissions would be "paid for work actually performed," the source said the governor would tell the lawmakers. "No longer will any receive full-time pay for parttime work."

Carey also will inform the lawmakers he will continue to demand the "fullest and most rigorous disclosures" of financial and business connections for his appointees.

In addition, Carey will tell the legislature he will propose a bill requiring legislative disclosure.

Appropriate elements of the disclosures would be made public.

Carey, the source said, realizes that the disclosure might be an intrusion on privacy but "intrusion is necessary," and "no official is drafted or forced to serve."

... Special Appointment

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gov. Hugh L. Carey is expected to appoint a special prosecutor to lead an investigation into alleged abuses at nursing homes.

Late Monday, the governor's office announced Carey will hold a news conference today to name his choice, an announcement which sparked speculation that Morris B. Abram, former president of Brandeis University, and former Assistant U.S. Attorney Bernard Nussbaum would be involved in the investigation.

The decision to appoint a special prosecutor reportedly followed a meeting in Carey's Manhattan office with Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz and Secretary of State Mario Cuomo, who submitted a preliminary report on the problem to Carey during the weekend.

Meanwhile, Assemblyman Andrew Stein turned over documents gathered in a continuing investigation of nursing homes by the Temporary State Commission on the Cost of Living and the Economy to Manhattan District Attorney Robert M. Morgenthau.

"We turned over information we feel possibly may be of a criminal nature within his (Morgenthau's) jurisdiction," Stein, a Manhattan Democrat, said after a meeting with Morgenthau.

He declined comment on the substance of the talks but said "obviously, Bergman's name came up."

The reference was to Bernard Bergman, owner of a number of nursing homes in New York and New Jersey, whose name has figured prominently in the commission's investigation of possible Medicaid abuse in the industry.

Stein has asked that a vote by Assembly Democrats to name a speaker be postponed because of the alleged business and personal connections of Assemblyman Stanley Steingut, D-Brooklyn, the acknowledged frontrunner for the post, with Bergman.

A joint hearing is scheduled for Jan. 21 on the nursing home industry by the state commission and the U.S. Senate Subcommittee on Aging. Stein, meanwhile, announced that his commission will hold public hearings into the operation of nursing homes Wednesday.

In New Jersey, a legislative investigation into financial abuses and inadequate care at nursing homes owned by Bergman may be getting off the ground after a three-year delay.

The state Senate authorized the inquiry Monday following charges by Sen. John J. Fay, D-Middlesex, that lobbyists for the nursing home industry tried to block the investigation.

The New Jersey Association of Health Care Facilities, representing nursing homes, said it did not oppose the investigation but objected to language in the legislation that criticized the entire industry before any inquiry began. The language was removed from the final version of the bill.

The Institutions, Health and Welfare Committee released it to the Senate floor Monday and the full Senate approved it on a voice vote and sent it to the Assembly.

Fay said he intends to coordinate New Jersey's inquiry with New York officials. He said he will meet soon to discuss the investigation with Stein.

Last Friday, New Jersey Attorney General William F. Hyland revealed New Jersey authorities are checking into the operations of a half dozen nursing homes run by Bergman, who operates nursing homes throughout the country. Fay said operates nursing homes in Phillipsburg, N.J., Elizabeth, Newark and Jersey City.

New ARC Swimming Program Begins

A new swimming program has begun for all retarded persons in Ulster County by the Association for Retarded Children (ARC). Bonnie Burnett, the ARC's recreation director, a trained water safety instructor, and the swimming program's founder, is shown with Artie Palmer. The program will be held Saturdays at 10 a.m. in the Ramada Inn pool, with Ms. Burnett giving American Red Cross courses to both children and adults. (Freeman photo)

Mrs. Grasso Set

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Ella T. Grasso, sent to office by an overwhelming margin, takes the oath of office Wednesday to become the first woman governor ever elected on her own merits.

In keeping with the austerity facing her Democratic administration, Mrs. Grasso plans to ride a morning train from her home in suburban Windsor Locks to Hartford for the ceremonies.

She will attend the inaugural ball that evening at the State Armory, a bleak granite building near the Capitol, rather than in more posh quarters to cut expenses.

Mrs. Grasso, married and the mother of two, has received worldwide attention since she became the first woman governor who did not succeed her husband to office. She has been mentioned as a possible vice presidential candidate for the 1976 Democratic ticket.

She is the state's first woman governor and its first governor of Italian descent. When she steps into office it also will mark the first time that two women have held top state elective posts. Secretary of the State Gloria Schaffer was elected to a second term.

While Gov. Thomas J. Meskill, a Republican, has promised her that the state's books will be balanced, Mrs. Grasso faces mammoth fiscal problems, including a projected revenue gap of more than $200 million in her first budget.

GOV. BROWN (R), TAKES OATH

Abandons Limousines

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's newly inaugurated Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has set the fiscal tone of his administration by abandoning the fleet of gubernatorial limousines and cutting his own office budget.

He also acted Monday to secure up to 12,500 federally financed public service jobs for the unemployed this year, again promised no new general taxes in 1975 and vowed to "remove the special (tax) privileges of the few."

Sounding much like his predecessor, Republican Ronald Reagan, the Democratic chief executive said in his inaugural address Monday "every branch and department of state government must re-examine itself with a view toward eliminating expenditures not 'absolutely necessary.'"

"For my part," he told the Democratic-dominated legislature in a concise eight-minute speech, "I propose a flat 7 per cent reduction in my own office budget."

Aides said the cut back would involve about $210,000, most of it in savings from the previously announced decision not to renew the lease of a private jet airplane used by Reagan.

It also was disclosed Brown will give up the fleet of three limousines in favor of a conservative 1974 Plymouth as his official state sedan. An aide said this was an "example of the spirit in which he's going to approach the governorship."

His father, former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, termed the inaugural address a "no nonsense" message.

Brown, who singled out rising inflation and soaring unemployment as his chief targets, signed as one of his first major acts — an order to plug state government into federally financed public service jobs for the unemployed.

He directed that the first 500 of an initial 1,500 state posts be filled by Jan. 30 and said as many as 12,500 such jobs could be financed this year in California under new federal legislation.

Court Vetoes Runoff Bid

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — The New Hampshire Supreme Court has vetoed a bid by Republican Sen.-elect Louis Wyman for a runoff of the election he won by only two votes.

Wyman had called for a rerun of his race against Democrat John Durkin, saying the slim margin did not constitute a mandate for him to take office.

Despite the court decision, however, top Republican leaders in the GOP dominated state House and Senate indicated late Monday they support a measure to call a special election in February.

Meanwhile, in Washington,

a Senate subcommittee scheduled a closed door meeting for today to decide how extensive a review it should undertake.

The indications of state legislative support for a new election followed a ruling by the state Supreme Court which cut short Wyman's effort to invalidate the November election and gain a court-ordered runoff. The five-man court said a county superior court had no jurisdiction "to invalidate an election to the Senate of the United States."

It had been asked to rule on jurisdiction mid-way through proceedings in Hillsborough County Superior Court where Wyman sought invalidation of the November general election, contending alleged voting irregularities and voting machine inaccuracy made the outcome uncertain.

Wyman, 57, a five-term congressman, called the ruling a "disappointment," but said he looked for favorable state legislative action to provide a runoff.

He said a new election was "the fairest way to put to the people the question of who they want for their senator."

Durkin called the proposal an effort to "shortcircuit" existing state law and the U.S.

Constitution which allow the Senate alone to review an election and order a new one. House Democrats immediately opposed any effort "which shortcuts the usual procedures" for filing legislation.

Apparently concerned that the Democrat-controlled Senate might overturn his two vote victory, Wyman has pushed steadily for a new contest with Durkin since the state Ballot Law Commission ruled he won, 110,926-110,924. As part of the state's two stage recount procedure, the GOP-controlled commission reviewed Durkin's 10 vote recount victory and reversed the outcome.

'Pierre Saved Our Lives'

BORRERO SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — The 13 balloons Malcolm Forbes hoped would carry him to Europe or Africa lay tethered to rocks in the desert today, only 100 miles from where they escaped skyward during a launching accident.

Forbes, saved by a French launch director's courageous leap to cut free the bouncing, sealed gondola, was resting at his home in New York.

"Pierre saved our lives," Forbes said after the stack of 13 balloons that were to carry him and a scientist companion first to the U.S. East Coast and then on to northern Africa or southern Europe broke loose during launch preparations from a Marine Corps helicopter station at Santa Ana, Calif., Monday morning.

The 55-year-old magazine publisher says he will try the transatlantic balloon voyage again next month if he can get his equipment back in shape.

"We were spinning" head over heels," said aerospace scientist Thomas Heinsheimer, who was strapped in the $700,000 gondola with Forbes.

The premature getaway of some of the balloons rolled and battered the spherical gondola for about 20 feet across the takeoff apron, as the helium filled plastic bags popped free from carts weighted with bags of concrete.

Ignoring the danger of being crushed by the 1,900 pound globe, and the risk that externally mounted oxygen tanks would explode, launch director Jean Pierre Pomereau leaped onto the gondola and yanked a release cord, setting free the balloons.

"If Jean Pierre hadn't managed to pull the release line in time, the gondola could have been destroyed and us with it," Heinsheimer said.

The runaway balloons did not drift far before they fell to the ground.

"They came down this morning in Henderson Canyon just north of Borrego Springs," said Frank Davies, chief ranger at Anza-Borrego Desert State Park, Monday night. "I sent some men out there and they tied them all to rocks to keep them from flying away again. Five of them are still fully inflated."

'Arabs Will Blow Up Wells'

By United Press International

Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat says Arab oil countries will blow up their wells rather than let the United States seize the installations to protect Western economies. "The United States is dangling a threat to intervene militarily to occupy oil wells," the leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization told the Paris newspaper Le Monde in an interview published Monday.

The guerrilla chief said, however, that the U.S. officials "envisaging such an operation" are "losing sight of two decisive factors."

"For one thing, the Arabs would blow up their oil wells, and for another the United States does not boss the world," he said. "We can count on the support of powerful allies in the international community."

Arafat's statement was the latest in a mounting outcry by Arab leaders and news media against remarks last week by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

In an interview with Business Week magazine, Kissinger raised the possibility of military intervention against oil producing states if an embargo resulted in "some actual strangulation of the industrialized world."

In Moscow, the Communist party newspaper Pravda accused Western "monopoly circles" of fanning an oil war but said attempts "to employ the bankrupt gunboat policy are doomed to failure."

"Positive tendencies which have become apparent in international relations in recent years make it imperative to look for solutions to world problems, including economic ones, by the development of cooperation on an equal footing between all countries," Pravda said.

In London, finance ministers of the nine Common Market countries met today to consider a plan —opposed by Kissinger —for a $30 billion fund using surplus Arab oil dollars to help consuming nations pay for fuel.

Under the plan, the Paris-based Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development would distribute the Arab oil money among needy consuming nations.

Kissinger has put forth a rival plan cutting out the organization and run on a direct government-to-government basis. Countries with surplus dollars would agree to underwrite private loans to countries in difficulties.

The European plan also would let developing countries borrow from the fund, whereas the Kissinger plan provided primarily for "recycling" oil dollars among needy industrial countries.

Time Running Out on Clemency

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charles Goodell, chairman of the presidential clemency board, says time is running out on President Ford's earned reentry program for Vietnam war evaders.

Goodell said he hoped to attract more applicants with a new advertising blitz.

"We have until the end of the month, Time is running out," Goodell said Monday as he announced that Ford had acted on 47 of the board's recommendations for clemency.

He said he believes confusion and "a general lack of trust in the government by people out there" has contributed to the poor response.

Ford established the board Sept. 16, 1974 for those convicted of draft evasion or absence-related offenses in the military during the Vietnam era.

It has now acted on 65 cases and only 900 applicants out of a potential 100,000 cases. Goodell said three radio and television announcements have been produced in an effort to communicate with the resisters and deserters before the Jan. 31 deadline.

While admitting that response to the program has been disappointing, Goodell said he does not believe Ford will extend the deadline. "I think it would be a mistake for anyone to count on extension," Goodell said.

He said part of the problem was a lack of procedural information on the part of most applicants.

"These people did not know how to take advantage of their rights under our legal system," he said. "They need help now in applying to the clemency board. The President's program offers very real benefits."

Asked if he believed the new Congress, which is expected to be more liberal, would act to extend or broaden the Ford amnesty proposal, Goodell said: "No."

The advertisements were made by Gen. Lewis Walt and the Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, two board members who represent widely differing points of view. Walt commanded American Marines in Vietnam for two years and Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame, was an opponent of the war.

Goodell said Ford signed the pardons on New Year's Eve. Nine unconditional pardons went to civilian draft resisters. Nine conditional pardons will become effective on completion of alternate service ranging from 3 to 12 months. In 29 military cases, Ford granted 3 unconditional pardons and 26 pardons conditional upon 3 to 12 months of alternate service.

Rebels Shell Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Rebel forces entered the second week of a dry season offensive today, shelling Phnom Penh's airport, capturing two government outposts and massacring a farming village, reports reaching the capital said.

A military spokesman in Phnom Penh said rebel gunners fired 51 rockets into Pochentong Airport this morning, damaging airplanes and ammunition supplies. Five persons were reported wounded.

The spokesman declined to disclose the extent of damages in the attack, the heaviest around the capital since the Communist offensive began.

Refugees arriving in the Cambodian capital said insurgents raided a village 20 miles north of Phnom Penh Monday, killing 300 men, women and children with bullets, machetes and sharpened bamboo stakes.

Correspondents were unable to reach the scene of the reported massacre, however, because the village lies behind pro-Communist guerrilla lines.

Military sources in Phnom Penh said insurgents launched ground and shelling attacks against two small bases along the Mekong River near the capital Monday, driving 90 government soldiers from the outposts.

Both sides have rushed reinforcements to the Phnom Penh area since the dry season offensive began on New Year's Eve. The government's palace guard has been thrown into the battle.

The rebel forces won a series of initial victories in the offensive, but government troops have generally held their own in the fighting since then.

County Jail Inmates Want Promised Changes Now

By MATT SPIRENG
KINGSTON

"If you can't have any communication with people, you can't do anything."

Those were the words of an Ulster County Jail inmate as he spoke to a contingent of reporters and photographers touring the Golden Hill facility recently.

The fact that any of the inmates were allowed to converse freely with reporters walking past their cells seemed an indication that Sheriff Thomas F. Mayone intends to carry through his campaign promise of an open administration.

There were also indications during the tour that the new sheriff is going to have a great number of problems to contend with and changes to make at the jail. Of course, the existence of problems was made acutely obvious by an inmate disturbance less than five hours after Mayone became the new sheriff.

The inmates are restless.

Apparently denied many things including recreation, rehabilitation programs and communication with the people who made the decisions about what they could or could not do under the past administration, the inmates want the promised changes under the new administration —and they want them now. "That thing yesterday," one inmate said "it's been a long time building up." He referred to the New Year's incident.

While indicating that inmates are upset by earlier times set by Mayone for lockup, in their individual cells and for the lights to go out, one inmate added, "I understand, he's only been here one day. I told them (other inmates) we have to give Mayone a chance."

Many inmates said they want a representative from each cellblock to sit down with Mayone and discuss the situation. "We don't want a confrontation; we want to sit down and talk," an inmate told members of the press.

That afternoon, Mayone met for approximately 2½ hours with inmate representatives. "I think we made progress," Mayone told the Freeman. "I told them a lot of things have to be changed, but it has to be on a gradual basis—one thing at a time. I think they understood."

One immediate change did come about, Mayone said. Lights out time was moved to 11 p.m. from 10 p.m. at the inmates' request. Lockup time was, however, kept at 9:30 p.m.

"We will try to set up weekly meetings," Mayone added. Head Jailer Willard Bound, who also held that position under former Sheriff William B. Martin, indicated while leading the tour of the jail that he expects many positive changes at the jail.

"Before, Sheriff Martin cut a lot of programs out," Bound said. "We've got to build up (inmate) morale again, get the guys (inmates) in action again."

Another of Mayone's problems at the jail will center around damage done by inmates. Several broken or missing toilets were observable in cells. It was explained that most of the toilets were damaged during an unpublicized December disturbance.

According to one officer, who declined to be named, but who held a position of high authority under Martin, the former sheriff had "insinuated" to his men that the press should not be told about jail disturbances. Mayone announced a New Year's Day disturbance during his swearing-in speech, apparently another indication that this will be an open administration.

A mess left after the New Year's Day disturbance was not yet fully cleaned up the next day. Bound indicated that inmates may be used to help clean garbage-strewn walls outside the cellblock.

It was charged by one inmate during the jail tour that on New Year's morning Mayone said the inmates were "guilty until proven innocent." Mayone denied the charge, explaining that what he told inmates was that they were in jail because of alleged crimes and that the jail administration would run the jail, not the inmates.

'Consumer Power'

It is often noted that in terms of mass protest the 1970s have thus far been tame compared with the agitated 1960s. That is true, but it also is true that another form of protest is on the rise. Dissatisfied consumers are becoming more aware of their concerted power, and more inclined to exercise it.

This power is not always—not even usually—employed in a deliberate, planned way. Even so, it can be effective.

The point is illustrated by what happened when the outgoing chairman of General Motors called upon the public to pitch in and buy new cars "for the good of America." His plea was massively ignored. The price of cars is still going up, but that should change if buyer resistance continues. Unless a basic economic law is no longer operative, prices must turn down if sales continue to drop. That will be a victory for consumer power.

The imminent computerization of supermarket checkout stands may touch off another example of consumer protest. Under this new system, currently being tested about the country, items will be computer-labeled when packed and then need only be moved past a scanning machine to have the cost of the item rung up. The price will be flashed on a screen at the checkout counter.

On its face this sounds like progress, but there are disadvantages for the consumer. The prices will flash on the screen so fast that the customer will have a hard time keeping up with them. More significantly, the plan seems to be to quit placing the prices on items in the store. Store owners claim that the resultant labor savings would benefit the consumer. The question is whether this would outweigh the benefits of comparison shopping made possible by having each item's price marked.

If consumers think not, the new system may be in for trouble. Already there is talk of boycotting stores which introduce such systems. This prospect may force modification of the computerized system so that customers will still be able to make on-the-spot decisions about how they'll spend their money.

Judgment on Coverup

There will be appeals, and in the end they will doubtless be carried to the Supreme Court. Because of this the conviction of four key Nixon administration figures on assorted charges of conspiracy, obstruction of justice and perjury cannot now be discussed with finality.

Even so, there is a conclusive atmosphere about the outcome of the Watergate coverup trial. The spate of evidence and argument and summation which inundated the jury over a period of many weeks leaves a strong impression that John N. Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and to a lesser extent Robert C. Mardian were indeed involved in a criminal conspiracy.

That impression extends also—most particularly, many would insist—to Richard M. Nixon. The former president's role as a co-conspirator, as a grand jury labeled him a long time ago, emerged in stark clarity from the proceedings.

It can be argued that to say this violates the traditional American concept that a man accused of crime must be considered innocent until proven guilty. Yet while this concept deserves to be honored, the circumstances with regard to Nixon are unique. He cannot be brought to trial because he enjoys the benefits of a presidential pardon. Therefore, his guilt or innocence must be assessed on the basis of the incomplete but compelling evidence made public.

In light of this we find ourselves in agreement with the evaluation given by the chief prosecutor, James F. Neal, in an interview after the four had been convicted: "There was no doubt in my mind, absolutely none, of the involvement of President Nixon. I don't think anyone could listen to the tapes and reach any other conclusion."

WASHINGTON—With the United States opening its gold vaults to speculators, intelligence reports warn that international rings are dealing in counterfeit gold.

The reports tell of counterfeiting-smuggling operations out of Beirut and Marseilles, with connections reaching deep into South America.

Gold bullion has been counterfeited, according to the reports, by drilling into the centers of 24-karat bars and filling them with lower-grade, 14-karat gold or with even cheaper tungsten.

In South America, official Swiss markings have been cleverly forged on the counterfeit bars. Some of these phony bars, it is believed, have been smuggled into the United States.

But the main smuggling center is Beirut, an airline hub with loose controls over gold shipments. The smugglers reportedly have been able to sneak the counterfeit bullion aboard planes to destinations all over the world.

Beirut gold dealers are also doing a big business in counterfeit coins. Valuable coins no longer in circulation are counterfeited by clever craftsmen who, under Lebanese law, don't even risk prosecution if the coins contain the proper amount of gold.

Some of these counterfeit gold coins, according to our sources, already have started moving into the United States. Americans buying coins and bullion, meanwhile, may learn the hard way that all that glitters isn't 24-karat gold.

Footnote: Swiss refineries are close to perfecting an electronic device, which can assess the gold purity of bullion. The bars are carefully weighed, meanwhile, on digital read-out scales. These would quickly detect gold-plated tungsten bars. But the bars filled with cheaper gold are more difficult to detect. After the low-grade gold is poured into the bar, it hardens and sometimes leaves an indentation at the opening. Gold bars with dents, therefore, may be rejected.

CASE AGAINST ITT: On October 2, we reported that International Telephone and Telegraph had managed incredibly, to get a bugging expert into the palaces of its late nemesis, the martyred Marxist president of Chile, Salvador Allende.

Now U.S. customs officials have prepared criminal accusations against ITT for transporting the expert's bugging gear out of the country without a federal export permit.

Barring last-minute intervention by the Commerce or State Department, Customs will ask the Justice Department to start prosecution later this month.

The federal action against ITT grew out of our story that the conglomerate sent its assistant security chief, Russell Tagliareni, and a $200-a-day electronics consultant, John Ragan, on a mysterious mission to Chile in 1971.

We established that Ragan actually got inside Allende's palaces, but ITT insisted the bugging expert was not planting bugs but helping Allende detect hidden microphones.

This was a curious thing for an ITT electronics expert to be doing, since at that very moment ITT was plotting against Allende.

By its own admission, ITT acknowledged to us in writing that the electronic whiz was also sent to Chile "to train Allende's policemen and his soldiers." As it happened, Chilean soldiers later overthrew Allende, who died in the coup.

One of Ragan's secret files says he met in Chile with a "General Sepulveda" of the Chilean Defense Ministry. But Ragan indicates with an asterisk that "Sepulveda" is a code name.

Following up our October 2 story, the State Department called in Customs agents who are now ready to seek grand jury action against ITT for failing to get federal approval to export the electronic gear.

Ragan told us he thought ITT had cleared the bugging equipment for export. ITT denied that its handling of the bugging devices was a criminal offense. At Customs, a spokesman confirmed the probe was proceeding actively but refused to discuss the details.

Footnote: While the State Department has been pushing the investigation at lower levels, we have been told the case is being sent to Secretary Henry Kissinger's office for review. He may decide for diplomatic reasons to soft-pedal it. The Commerce Department, according to our sources, would also prefer a slap-on-the-wrist rather than criminal action. A spokesman strongly denied, however, that anyone at Commerce had sent out orders "to take it easy on ITT."

HAPPY ENDING: In Mid-December, we wrote about Moira, a little Vietnamese orphan who died a month before Christmas because there was no measles vaccine to save her. The vaccine was sitting in warehouses in the United States. Government regulations and red tape were keeping it from being shipped.

Now we have received word that Friends of Children, Inc., has been granted an additional $10,000 by the Agency for International Development to help get the supplies to the children.

"I consider this to be the direct result of your column..." Mrs. Constance Boll, the executive director, wrote us. "This additional procurements alleviates some immediate shipping problems. Let us now hope that we see even more dramatic results through the granting of military airlifts for orphanages supplies for Vietnam."

Dealings in Counterfeit Gold

Washington Merry-Go-Round

"The Party Is Over"

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — As they begin preliminary planning for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. Henry M. Jackson and his managers face a difficult, potentially vital choice: should they hire the leading image-maker in politics today at the risk of alienating the last important big city boss?

Secret preliminary conversations have been held between the Jackson camp and David Garth, the New York-based wizard of media-oriented campaigning. But Garth is running the media campaign for the reformer who is challenging Mayor Richard J. Daley's bid for a sixth term in Chicago this year. Thus, the question: would hiring Garth so offend Daley as to alienate him from Jackson's candidacy?

The question reflects the early problems facing Jackson. While boasting the best-financed and perhaps best-organized campaign in this early stage, he remains a drab candidate on the platform or television screen. Even with the support of Daley and the party's remaining establishment figures, Jackson cannot hope to be nominated without some primary election victories. And those victories are impossible if he repeats his tattle-gray campaign of 1972.

If anybody can spruce up Jackson as a campaigner, it is Dave Garth. He was prototype for the political mastermind in the 1972 motion picture, "The Candidate." But fiction was exceeded by fact in 1974 by Garth's role in electing Hugh Carey as the first Democratic governor of New York in 16 years. An overweight, pedestrian Congressman Carey with 4 per cent of the Democratic vote in early polls was transformed into a sleek, urbane, even charismatic candidate Carey who won in a landslide. Old friends were stunned by the dynamic Hugh Carey portrayed in Garth's television commercials.

But beyond physical metamorphosis was Garth's concept of the Carey Campaign. While previously associated with liberal and reformist candidates, Garth correctly saw Carey as the leader of the revitalized New Deal coalition combining domestic liberalism with a hard-nosed social image acceptable to ethnic groups.

Inside Report

Wizard or the Boss

Even before Carey was elected, Garth was privately talking about Scoop Jackson playing a similar national role. Long before he had met any of Jackson's staff, Garth envisioned himself planning Jackson's media campaign based on the revitalized coalition.

Garth finally did meet privately over lunch last month with Robert Keefe, Jackson's new campaign manager. Neither made any commitment. Garth would lose some of his talented leftish employees should he sign up with Jackson; Keefe is just beginning preparations for the long campaign.

But the biggest potential impediment to a Garth-Jackson alliance is the Daley question. Garth worked for the winning 1972 campaign in Illinois by Gov. Dan Walker, a bitter reform foe of the Daley machine who has never made peace with the mayor.

Far more serious, however, is Garth's present handling of reform Alderman William Singer, who engineered Daley's unseating at the 1972 Miami Beach convention and is now running against him for mayor in the Democratic primary. Singer mailed Garth a $20,000 check as the first installment for services that undoubtedly will include abrasive anti-Daley commercials.

Would Jackson hiring Garth lose the present strong possibility of a Daley endorsement? The guesses by Daley-watchers, friends and enemies, are mixed. But the consensus is that it would depend on just how tough the TV commercials prepared for Singer by Garth turn out to be.

Several Daley lieutenants feel Jackson ought to privately approach the mayor on his next visit to Chicago, lay out the facts and assess his reaction — all before hiring Garth. That recalls Sen. Adlai Stevenson III informing Daley that he was hiring Dan Walker as manager of his first Senate campaign in 1970 because of Walker's executive talents. Daley replied with a chilling question: out of 11 million people in Illinois, is Walker the only one man with executive talents?

Nicholas Von Hoffman

A Significant Contribution

WASHINGTON (KFS) — As reprehensible as the people in the airplane-hijacking business may be, we can thank them for making a significant contribution to the fight against unemployment. Without them the thousands of women who earn their livings searching people's handbags and suitcases at the nation's airports would probably be unemployed.

Airplane hijacking is rapidly going the way of train robberies, not because of these women and their X-ray machines, but because the hijackers themselves are such criminal nuisances there are almost no nations left that will give them asylum. Nevertheless it's safe to assume that the great-granddaughters of the present pioneer generation of bag searchers will be pursuing the same line of work.

They are exemplars of what some social thinkers have called the changeover from a production to a service economy. Wage rates have made it unprofitable to produce a wide variety of items from television sets to sewing machines in America because, it is said, too many workers have been sucked into the service industries.

At the same time the middle and upper classes, the people who presumably can afford to purchase services as well as products, are screaming there are none to be had, except at exorbitant prices, and even then they complain the work is shoddy. If that's so, it may explain the rise in the number of service occupations for which there is only a marginal demand. Who really needs the services of tens of thousands of public relations representatives, guidance counselors, inspectors, receptionists and variously titled paper shufflers who drag down the productivity of every large enterprise, public or private?

None of us do individually, but all of us do collectively because we have a national commitment to full employment. This commitment is so intense, and the personal consequences of getting fired or laid off are so terrible in a society where almost none of us have any savings or other income to fall back on, that we never ask ourselves whether there is a better way to create the jobs we need.

Save in recessionary times such as now, we don't even like to admit we're creating jobs for the sake of a job rather than the work product. Only the radicals routinely point out the numbers of people who are dependent for their livelihoods on the war munitions industry. The rest of us know it but we don't like to talk about it, except when the government decides to close down a naval base. Then the television news airs a few interviews with the bewildered workers, and the politicians speak vague thoughts about "conversion to a peacetime economy," perhaps by commissioning the construction of a subway from Omaha to suburban Los Angeles.

Even the depletions of war and the direct siphoning off the labor market of several millions into the armed forces has been insufficient. We have had to resort to other expedients which are hidden under the mantle of justice.

Hasn't that been the real social economic function of the mandatory programs to hire women and minority groups? It would be hard to demonstrate that they've provided much "equal opportunity" but easy to show that they are an effective legal crowbar for job creation.

Unhappily this is a very expensive way to attempt to meet the minimal claims of distributive justice. Not only do we have millions of workers who know they're being paid to do nothing much, but because they're so unproductive they act as a constant pressure on the government to cover the bills by inflation. At the same time an immense misallocation of resources is required to create these non-jobs, while wage scales are so distorted by them that employers with real work to be done can't afford to hire the workmen to do it.

Attempting to meet national full employment goals by creating non-producing service jobs has been politically painless because it doesn't jangle the sensibilities of special interest groups and the costs are both hidden and postponable.

However, like living off of one's capital, we're going to find there comes an end to that. If we go on letting Haitian women make our baseballs and Taiwanese peasants manufacture our television sets, one of these days the airport ladies are going to open our bags for inspection and find nothing in them.

The New, Incoming Congress... Liberal House Role Possible

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The new House of Representatives convening in mid-January will be filled with aggressive, reform-minded newcomers who could claim for the House the Senate's traditional role as the liberal leader in Congress.

For years, but most dramatically in the 1960s, the Senate has led the way in passage of civil rights and other landmark domestic legislation and opposition to U.S. involvement in Vietnam. But that trail-blazing liberal role might well shift to the House this year.

With 75 new members, the 435-member House has taken a considerable swing to the left. The Senate, which was pretty liberal to begin with, has stayed just about the same.

Congress will get an early chance to prove just how liberal it really is. Among the first bills slated for action are measures approved by the old 93rd Congress and vetoed by President Ford—including regulation of strip mining and health revenue sharing.

The margin of votes on these measures will provide some indication how close the heavily Democratic 94th Congress comes to being "veto-proof," although no one expects every Democrat to vote the same way on every issue.

The legislation Congress produces this year also will be important as a likely foundation for the Democrats' presidential election platform in 1976. As it looks now, the party's candidate may well be a member of the new Congress.

The November election saw a break-up in the House coalition of about 60 conservative Democrats and 187 Republicans that impeded liberal legislation in the last Congress. Now there are only 144 Republicans and about 40 Southern Democrats, and the liberals are in control.

Democrats increased their Senate strength, from 58 to 61 out of 100 members, but the Senate is only slightly more liberal than last year. The switches were often a matter of a conservative Democrat replacing a Republican.

House Democrats signaled their lust for reform last month when, with new members voting and retirees barred, they rammed through the most comprehensive overhaul of that chamber's parliamentary procedures in a quartercentury.

The Ways and Means Committee was stripped of its power to appoint members of other committees, a job taken over by the liberal-dominated House Democratic caucus. Ways and Means was expanded to include more liberals.

Long-standing conservative committee chairmen may be deposed soon after Congress convenes. Two potential targets are Reps. W.R. "Bob" Poage of Texas, chairman of the Agriculture Committee, and Richard Ichord of Missouri, who heads the Internal Security Committee.

Reform efforts were expected to fare less well in the Senate.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., is prepared to challenge the cloture rule that requires a two-thirds vote to halt a filibuster, but his move to reduce the needed majority to 60 per cent faces expected death by filibuster under the old rule.

Conservative control on the Republican side of the aisle also is being challenged. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., is opposing conservative Carl Curtis of Nebraska for GOP caucus chairman.

Florida's two senators, Lawton Chiles and freshman Richard Stone, will urge the Senate to approve a proposed "sunshine law" which would open all committee sessions to the press and public. Stone says he will refuse to attend any closed sessions.

Much of the steam behind the liberal movement in the Senate will come from the new generation of Democratic committee chairmen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut will succeed retiring Sam J. Ervin of North Carolina, a conservative on nearly everything but Watergate, as chairman of Government Operations.

William Proxmire of Wisconsin is taking charge of the Banking Committee from John Sparkman of Alabama, who will become chairman of Foreign Relations. But Sparkman likely will be more conservative than J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, who suffered a primary election defeat.

The posture of Congress doubtless will be influenced by senior Democrats seeking their party's presidential nomination next year, notably Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, who represent the moderate-to-conservative wing of the party.

U.S., Soviet Strength . . . Perennial Question

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Every year, with each new defense budget, Congress must deal with a perennial military question: "Which is stronger, the Soviet Union or the United States?"

Congressional critics say the United States has more military power than it can use and towers over the Russians. The administration says the United States leads the Soviet Union in most areas, trails in a few and must maintain high levels of defense spending to keep the Russians from moving ahead.

suddenly in 1940 the only survey that counts is the one taken on the battlefield.

U.S. policy is based on a strategy of deterrence—the belief that no enemy will attack if U.S. military might is plainly superior.

The specialists generally agree Soviet forces have improved greatly in recent years. While the United States devoted billions to Vietnam, the Soviets spent their money on improving weaponry.

Numerical comparisons are easy: The Soviets have 3.5 million men in uniform to America's 2.2 million. The Soviets have 34,000 tanks to America's 8,700. But the United States has about 8,000 strategic bombs and warheads, plus 15 attack carriers, to Russia's 2,600 warheads and no carriers.

Beyond the numbers are the intangibles.

For example, the U.S.

fighting experience in Korea and Vietnam, while Soviet forces have not fought in major engagements since 1945.

Then too, the opposing forces would face differing challenges.

One of the U.S. Navy's jobs, for example, is to keep open sea lanes from the United States to foreign supply military built up extensive sources and battlefields. But Russia is largely self sufficient in raw materials and lies adjacent to the likely theaters of war, so its navy would try to close America's shipping lanes. The different roles require different forces.

The 1973 war in the Middle East provided the most recent test of Soviet and American equipment.

A report by the House Armed Services Subcommittee which visited the Middle East just after the fighting said: "What the Soviets gave the Arabs was not sophistication, but proliferation. It was the vast number of weapons provided the Arabs, rather than any exceptional technical capability, that took a toll."

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the late Army chief of staff, rejected this conclusion, saying: "The Soviet army are not simply turning out a high volume of cheap equipment."

Abrams did concede Soviet "equipment might not incorporate what we would call the latest in technology."

OPERATION AWARE, 1975:

A&P CUTS FOOD PRICES

1. PRICE CUTS ON STAPLES.

A&P starts the New Year by cutting the price on A&P Brands of staples such as Dry Milk, Beans, Peanut Butter, Mayonnaise, Luncheon Meat, Fish Sticks, Spaghetti, Macaroni, Spaghetti Sauce, Cheese Slices, Frozen Shoestring Potatoes and other items that are important to a family's diet. So now you can get meaningful savings on many frequently purchased items.

2. WEEKLY SPECIALS TOO... IN ALL DEPARTMENTS.

Outstanding weekly specials to include meat, fresh fruits and vegetables and grocery items. And when A&P saves you money on meat, that really means something. Because at A&P, you know you're always getting fully matured meat that's cut, trimmed and priced for value. Take our beef, for instance. We sell only one quality of beef at A&P. And it's backed by our unconditional money-back guarantee and our Butcher's Pledge. That's the A&P Butcher's promise to always pack the better side of every cut down. So if you like what you see in the store, you'll love what you see at home.

3. AWARE LIST CONTINUES.

We're continuing our Early Warning System against price increases: The Aware List. Every week we will voluntarily post a list of price increases, such as those received from manufacturers, a full seven days before we actually change our price. That gives you one week to purchase at the old price, subject, of course, to product availability. You'll also find "Be Aware" shelf tags on many frequently purchased items with the day of the price increase right on the tag. Of course, the Aware List won't include perishables like meat, eggs or fresh fruit and vegetables, where markets fluctuate daily, items controlled by law; or advertised specials.

4. CONSUMER PROTECTION POLICY.

We're of course continuing our commitment to making you an Aware Shopper by reminding you of what every A&P store owes you and by informing you of ways to get the most for your money. Look for the signs in A&P stores spelling out all the protection A&P gives you: 1. Guaranteed Satisfaction. 2. Exceptional Value. 3. Low Price with Absolutely No Compromise in Quality. 4. Rain Check Product Availability. 5. Product Freshness Through Open Dating. 6. Consumer Information. 7. Courteous Service. 8. Cleanliness. 9. Safe and Healthy Products. 10. Shopping Convenience. 11. The Butcher's Pledge. 12. Variety of Choice and 13. People to People Communication.

Ulster County Leadership Retained

Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago (R-Dist.8), center, holds on to the gavel and the microphone he has used as chairman of the county board for seven years following his reelection to the post

Legislature Leadership Unchanged

KINGSTON

Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago (R-Dist.2) was once again named to lead the county board for another year—his seventh year as “a problem solver—a man who gets things done,” according to Brian White (R-Dist.8) who nominated him for the post at Monday night’s organizational meeting of the Ulster County Legislature.

The Democrats nominated Saugerties legislator Richard Thornton (D-Dist.1) to oppose Savago, but the chairman won on a party line vote and Thornton asked that the vote be made unanimous for Savago. Legislator Lester C. Elmendorf (R-Dist.2) served as temporary chairman until Savago’s re-election.

In nominating Savago, White cited his 15 years experience on the board, the tremendous strides the legislature has made since Savago assumed the chairmanship in 1968 and the fact that “he has worked well with both sides of the aisle” (Republicans and Democrats) as well as with the residents of Ulster County. Savago’s nomination was seconded by Stephen Hyatt (R-Dist.2).

Thornton was nominated by Eugene Perry (D-City) and seconded by James Gilpatric (D-City).

Majority Leader Ernest J. Gardner (R-Dist.5) and Minority Leader Dr. Gerald P. Gorman (D-City) were also designated to continue their leadership for another year.

The only resolution to provoke comment concerned the designation of bank depositories for the county with George Barthel (D-Dist.7) taking exception to the fact that the largest deposits are to go to banks which are controlled by outside interests. “We ought to do business where a business is owned and controlled by people of Ulster County,” Barthel suggested.

Barthel was joined in his objection by Louis Resnich (D-Dist. 7). All other legislators present approved the following deposits: $6 million each in Kingston Trust Company and Bankers Trust, Hudson Valley. Also, $1 million each in Chase Manhattan, First National Bank of Highland, Valley National Bank of Wallkill, First National Bank and Trust Company, Ellenville, Ellenville National Bank and Rondout National Bank.

Also, National Bank of Orange and Ulster Counties, Marine Midland Bank, Citibank and Chemical Bank of Hudson Valley.

The board designated the Daily Freeman and Hudson Valley newspapers as official newspapers for the county.

In other business the legislature agreed to:

- Call a special meeting of the board for Thursday, Jan. 9 in the County Office Building following a 7:30 p.m. public hearing on a local law pertaining to certain payments of obligations incurred by the Town of Lloyd in 1973 for which money has to be borrowed.

- Appropriate $5,500 for the Ulster County Agricultural Society for the annual Ulster County Fair.

- Appropriate $1,000 for the Ulster County Historical Society for maintenance of Bevier House in Marletown, the society’s headquarters.

- Appropriate $31,872 to the Ulster County Soil and Water Conservation District.

- Appoint Savago, Gardner and Dr. Gorman as representatives to the Mid-Hudson Inter-County Council.

- Apportion dog license money to various towns in the county and the City of Kingston.

- Set the date of Tuesday, Jan. 21 at 8 p.m. in the town hall in Accord for a public hearing on a proposed agricultural district for the towns of Marletown, Rochester and Wawarsing.

- Relocate a plaque recognizing the historical significance of the Ulster County Court House from inside to the outside of the building on Wall Street in Kingston.

Lawmakers Hear Savago Cite Improvements Throughout Ulster

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

“Despite a bleak economic year, Ulster County continued to make advances in many fields,” Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago told the County Board Monday night in his annual message in which he cited improvements in many departments including data processing, highway, recreation, services to senior citizens and other programs.

The New Paltz legislator suggested that “probably the most important accomplishment affecting the taxpayer was the lowering of the county tax rate.

“This can only be attributed to the sound financial policies of the leadership and personnel responsible for the finances of the county,” he said.

“Lowering of county charges made a favorable impact on taxes in 19 out of the 20 townships in the county and the City of Kingston,” he recalled.

Savago, in citing improvements told of the installation of the county’s new IBM data processing system in newly renovated quarters at South Manor Avenue, formerly occupied by the highway department.

He told of the consolidation of the highway department at its quarry facility off Hurley Avenue and the sale of the former highway property at 27 Gage Street in the city. Highway offices will be moved to the quarry site as soon as construction of new quarters are completed there.

With regard to the county parks system, Savago told of the opening of a full season at Ulster Landing County Park for which a $135,000 federal grant was received for its purchase. The legislature also approved the financing for construction of a second county park with swimming facilities on county owned property in New Paltz, he said.

Solving office space problems was also given prime consideration during the past year, according to Savago who described the County Building Annex at Flatbush Avenue as near capacity of occupation and storage.

Services to senior citizens included free inoculations and a schedule of visiting nurses throughout the county; a sum of $11,460 appropriated for Senior Citizens Alliance for recreation and education and the increase of income eligibility for 50 per cent tax abatement from $5,000 to $6,000.

Savago spoke of the recent consolidation of the Ulster County Drug Commission and the Mental Health Board saying many advantages are expected as a result of the merger.

Initial steps have been taken for the construction of a new mental health center on property granted by Benedictine Hospital and serial bonds and notes have been authorized for more than $1 million in construction costs.

Drug Commission grants totaled $363,864, Savago said. Programs to lessen unemployment in the county were taken, the chairman explained, noting the nearly $2 million in federal grants received to meet the crisis here.

The money was used to provide public service jobs and training. The county could be eligible to receive as much as $2.5 million in 1975.

Federal revenue sharing grants came to almost $1.4 million with the money going for highway equipment, renovation of the Flatbush Avenue County Office Building Annex, preliminary site work on the county park at New Paltz, operational funds for 20 of the county’s libraries and $760,000 to partially pay for a bond issue for data processing equipment. Also, some of the funds went toward renovation of the Manor Avenue Garage. To date Ulster has received $5.5 million in federal revenue sharing grants. “This is reflected in great savings to the taxpayer and a subsequent lower tax rate,” Savago said.

The chairman also referred to the county’s summer youth program, medical scholarships, hospital-ambulance communications, progress in tax mapping, stream improvement, its new energy office and the establishment of agricultural districts.

Controversy Over Skating Rink

By CARL GRAHAM

SAUGERTIES

The Saugerties Village Board heard both opponents and supporters of its recent decision to reopen the Main Street skating rink, but took no action at its Monday night meeting.

The rink, on property owned by the Saugerties school district, is maintained by the village. On Dec. 18 the board voted to close it after John Woerthmann Jr. of Main Street complained of vandalism to his property and water problems when the ice melted. The board supported Trustee Erika Hinchey’s motion by a 4-2 margin, with Trustees Robert Gardner, Walter Keefe and Richard Underhill voting for the motion and Trustees Joseph Martin and Cal Hackett against.

★★★ Move Is Explained

SAUGERTIES

Saugerties Village Trustee Erika Hinchey, in a statement released to the press after Monday night’s village board meeting, explained why she proposed at the Dec. 18 meeting to close the Main Street skating rink, then moved to rescind the action at the special meeting on Jan. 2.

“Rescinding the motion (is necessary) to protect our children from any foreseeable tragedy as could happen skating on the Esopus Creek or the Sawkill,” she said.

She said that she and Peter Gilbane, who supported the board’s move to reopen the rink, conducted a survey during the past weekend that included all homes along Bennett Avenue, Virginia Avenue, Finger Street, Washington Avenue and Main Street. The consensus was to keep the rink open, she said.

“No one claimed water damages in their own homes,” Mrs. Hinchey said. “It has always been a wet area. A couple said that with the drains there, water is less of a problem now.”

At a special meeting Jan. 2 the board unanimously voted to reopen the rink but without flooding it any further after hearing Woerthmann and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Altenau object and Charles Steele of Main Street support the move. Peter Gilbane of Main Street submitted a petition calling for its reopening.

At Monday night’s meeting Gilbane said he couldn’t see any reason for reopening the rink without putting water on it, and Mayor Vernon “Joe” Benjamin agreed. Hackett also said that if the rink is to be used it should be flooded some way.

Mrs. Altenau objected, saying that vandalism, not water, was the problem. She suggested that an area at Cantine Field be flooded for a rink instead.

After several sharp exchanges between Gilbane and Mrs. Altenau, Village Attorney William Brinnier asked if the village had permission to flood the property and if it had a release in case of damage suits for activities at the rink. Benjamin said that the school district had given verbal permission, but Brinnier insisted it should be in writing.

Joseph Keegan, representing Edward Igoe of Route 3, Saugerties, asked for a board decision on Igoe’s request to hook onto village water. He said Igoe was elderly and might fall and hurt himself carrying water from his well in icy weather. The board had tabled Igoe’s request on Dec. 18.

Water Commissioner Gardner said that the village now holds 19 unpaid water bills from people outside the village totaling more than $2,000, but Keegan offered to pay in advance if needed. The board held an executive session after the meeting to consider Igoe’s request and decided to have Brinnier draw up a contract for water service, then hold a special meeting to consider it.

In other action, the board: • Approved Edward Coates of East Bridge Street as an active member of the R.A. Lynch Hose Company.

- Approved Benjamin’s naming of James Gage, former village clerk-treasurer, to the zoning board of appeals.

- Set the village election for March 18, with polls open from noon to 9 p.m. at the village clerk’s office. Up for election for two year terms are the mayor’s position and trustee seats now held by Mrs. Hinchey, Hackett and Gardner.

- Turned the overdue water rents from out-of-village users over to Brinnier for legal action.

- Heard Benjamin suggest some action on gasoline stations that go out of business and leave their tanks underground. The village has had problems recently with leaks from underground gasoline storage tanks.

- Granted the R.A. Snyder Hose Company permission to lock the back door of its clubroom when it is used as a polling place.

Terminal Opens Wednesday

KINGSTON

The Trailways Bus Company officially opens its ticket terminal at Washington Avenue and North Front Street on Wednesday although the grand opening will be delayed somewhat pending completion of exterior work and approval by city officials.

Trailways, which once had most of its operation at the bus terminal at Broadway and Pine Grove Avenue, is now operating out of three locations. The ticket office will be uptown at Washington and North Front Street; the home office will remain at Broadway and Pine Grove Avenue while the main terminal along with the bulk of its maintenance facilities will operate out of Albany.

Trailways President Eugene Berardi squelched reports that the firm planned to move its home office out of Kingston and with some $30,000 in sales tax revenues (for the city) per year. “Our lease runs for another six years” (at the present site), Berardi said, adding, “we plan to stay right where we are.”

The firm has at least $100,000 invested in its uptown ticket terminal which only a few months ago was the site of an abandoned Citgo service station. Trailways purchased the service station property for an estimated $75,000 and then paid the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency another $17,000 for property adjoining the Citgo parcel in between Citgo and Utility Platers on Washington Avenue. Extensive blacktopping and some landscaping followed.

The building’s red brick colonial style construction is expected to gain final approval from the city’s Architectural Review Board sometime next month.

Irate Consumers Off to Albany

About 170 Irate Consumers of Ulster County boarded four buses for Albany Monday to express their demands of Gov. Hugh Carey for a moratorium on utility rate increases, abolishment of fuel adjustment charges and election of members of the Public Service Commission. Mrs. Belle Sundeen, head of ICUC, said her group and others from all over the state met with “frustration and anger” at Gov. Carey’s failure to meet with them. “He had six weeks notice but apparently did not consider the issues important enough to come,” she said, adding that a Carey aide, who did appear at the meeting in the Legislative Office Building offered nothing but “a lot of platitudes.” She said she was impressed, however, with the fact that 30 consumer and ecology groups from Long Island to Buffalo made the trek to Albany. “It was historic in the field of consumerism,” she said. Smith Attacks Mayor’s Message, Budget

Alderman Brian Smith (R-3rd Ward), minority leader of the Common Council, today lashed out at Mayor Francis R. Koenig’s annual message and budget remarks.

Smith charged that Koenig had waited too long to make his proposed 1975 budget public, and called that an “annual ritual,” and “devious.”

There was a lack of criticism of the Koenig budget, according to Smith, because it was made public only three days before the budget hearing.

“Obviously,” said Smith, “it is always advantageous to slip the public a huge dose of bad medicine between Christmas joyousness and the anticipated New Year’s revelry.”

Smith charged that by following his “annual ritual,” Koenig had increased the city’s budget appropriations from $5 million to $8 million, the city tax rate from $38 to $50 per thousand, and increased the city payroll by about half.

“All this was done while at the same time the quality and diverse services necessary for a city have declined,” Smith charged.

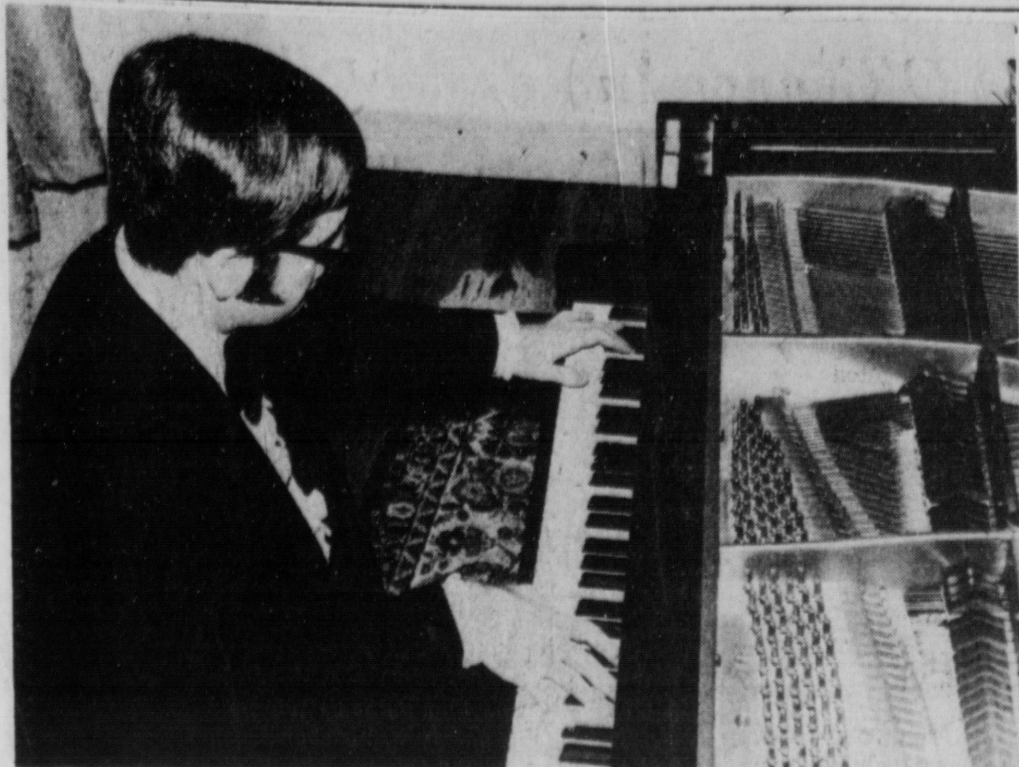

The minority leader said that while the city had received such budget aids as a $152,000 reduction in county taxes, and an increase in state aid of close to $100,000, city taxes were still going up.

“The county’s savings for us alone amounted to $3.51 per thousand,” said Smith, “and yet the mayor expects the taxpayers to accept a

$3.25 per thousand increase as proposed by him and his financial wizards.”

“The Council had better stop rubberstamping his honor’s handiwork as they have done with little hesitation in the past. This year, 1975, is going to be a financially serious year for all municipalities,” said Smith.

“If Kingston is to get back on the right track,” said Smith, “the aldermen had better get up on the engine where the mayor is, instead of riding the caboose.”

PETER KACHIGIAN, a virtuoso at the piano and a student of The Boston Conservatory of Music, will perform in concert Saturday at 8 p.m. at Kingston High School Auditorium. Proceeds will be donated to the Junior Board of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society. Tickets are available at Abram's and Kingston Music Center and will be sold at the door.

UCCC Provides Education To Aid Couple's 3 Children

Mr. and Mrs. John McCullough, of Kingston, are pleased over the educational training Ulster County Community College has provided for their three children, who are but three of the College's many success stories.

Mr. McCullough, an architect principal of the Kingston firm of Halverson-McCullough Associates, says he and his wife feel all three children — John Jr., Mary Ann and Mark — benefitted from the education they received at the community college in preparing for future careers.

"All three did very well at Ulster and had no trouble transferring their credits taken at the community college to senior colleges and universities," reported Mr. McCullough. "We're tremendously pleased over the education they received and are proud of the services Ulster County Community College provides to county residents."

John Jr., a 1967 graduate of UCCC, transferred to Syracuse University, where he earned a bachelor's degree. He served four years in the U.S. Air Force and now is employed by Allegany Airlines in Syracuse.

Mary Ann, a 1970 graduate of UCCC, transferred to the State University College at Brockport to complete her studies for a bachelor's degree. She is now employed in Rochester by Computer Consoles Inc.

Mark Lavezzo, a 1973 graduate of UCCC, transferred to the State University College at New Paltz. He now is associated with Duplex Productions Inc. on Albany Avenue Extension in Kingston.

"All three got their start at Ulster," said Mr. McCullough, "and that paved the way for the careers they now are involved in. This is an example of how the community college has aided one family, but I am sure it is true for many other families in Ulster County."

Mr. and Mrs. John McCullough, of Kingston, have praised Ulster County Community College for the training it has provided for their three children, John Jr., Mary Ann and Mark.

Kingston Chapter of AFS Plans Social This Friday

Kingston Chapter of American Field Service (International Scholarships) announces a social evening Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the parish hall of Fair Street Reformed Church. The Kingston community is invited to meet Klaus Eisterer from Austria who is spending the year in Kingston on an AFS International Scholarship.

Two other AFS students will also show slides and answer questions about their native countries. They are Hilde Bastani of Belgium who is spending the year in Ontario and Brigitte Jallow of Denmark who is staying in Chap-paquia for the year.

The Kingston Chapter of AFS invites the public to join in welcoming Klaus Eisterer to the community. Refreshments will be served.

Doing The Right Thing

By Elizabeth L. Post

Dear Mrs. Post: I work for a national company and before Christmas I received a memo from the secretary of the branch manager. She asked that I donate a specific amount of money, and indicated that half would go toward a Christmas gift for the boss and the other half would go toward a gift for herself. Now I don't mind giving a gift to the boss, but a number of us didn't feel like making a contribution toward a Christmas gift for this girl who does very little for us.

Please advise us on the proper manner to handle this situation if it arises next year — especially if money is still as tight as it is now.

Marion
Dear Marion: Are you sure you read the memo correctly? I can't imagine anyone doing such a thing, unless she meant it as a very poor joke. In any case, get together with the other victims and form a united front. You should each give half the amount she requests, with a note attached saying, "My contribution toward Mr. Smith's gift."

Dear Mrs. Post: My stepdaughter is planning to be married in June. She lives with her father and me (her choice), although her mother is still living here in the same town. And she and her mother still get along well. My husband and I will be paying for the wedding and the reception.

How should the engagement announcement be worded to avoid any hurt feelings? I love my stepdaughter and want things to be right for her.

Mrs. T.J.
Dear Mrs. J.: Since your stepdaughter is living with you and her father, it is appropriate for you to announce her engagement. Most newspapers use their own wording, but when you send the notice to your paper, you should write: "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith announce the engagement of Mr. Smith's daughter, Jean, to . . . Miss Smith is also the daughter of Mrs. Mary Smith of this city."

What is your most puzzling etiquette problem? To the sender of the most interesting question that I receive each week, I will send a free copy of Emily Post's Etiquette. The question chosen and its answer will be published in this column. Send your question to Elizabeth L. Post in care of The Daily Freeman, and don't forget to include your name and address.

Dear Mrs. Post: You have written that the wine steward at a restaurant should be tipped. I cannot remember whether you recommended 15 per cent of the wine bill, 15 per cent of the entire bill or an entirely different amount. Could you help me out?

J. L.
Dear J. L.: Certainly, the wine steward's tip should be based on the total wine bill. According to Mario Ricci, chief "sommelier" at the famous "21 Club" restaurant in New York, the wine steward expects to receive between 8 and 12 per cent of the wine bill. Others feel that 15 per cent of the wine bill is more appropriate, so you might make your decision based on the quantity and quality of the service.

A workshop in Macedonian Folk Dance at Woodstock Town Hall, led by Atanas Koloransky of Skopje, Macedonia.

Folk Dance Workshops to Start Wednesday

A series of weekly Folk Dance Workshops will be held at the Marbletown Reform Church located on Rte. 209 across from the Stone Ridge Post Office. Sessions will start at 8 p.m. beginning January 8th. The class is so structured to appeal to all age levels and all degrees of experience.

Instructor Ron Sanders has done extensive research on both American and European dance and currently teaches folk dancing in Woodstock, Poughkeepsie, Croton and many public and private schools within Ulster County. He also directs the Novo International Folk Dancers who perform widely in the Hudson Valley.

Folk dancing provides an opportunity not only to learn the dances of many different countries, but also to learn something of the country's folklore. In addition, there is the joy of sharing with others the different feelings that music can bring out.

One of the nicer things about folk dancing is that you don't need a partner, since many of the dances are performed in lines and circles. Included in the workshop repertoire will be the Greek Hasapakos, Israeli Horas and Yugoslavian Kolos.

For further information, contact Roy Freeman in Kingston or Willie Sueple in High Falls.

Make a Shower Curtain for January Thaw!

Dear Heloise:

My idea of a money saver. I had several towels that our puppy ate holes in and corners off. I couldn't afford to buy new towels and, basically, they were in good shape.

My shower curtain was faded too. I made a patchwork shower curtain. Using six-inch squares, this was easy. The size is 73x73. I lined it with plastic which I already had from another shower curtain.

I patched the holes in the towels with remnant squares and even added patches to the ones that were perfectly good. Thus carrying through the patchwork theme.

To carry it even further you could make a cover for your tissue box of patchwork squares. This all costs nothing if you sew and have scraps around.

Another advantage when buying new towels or rugs, you can buy what's on sale. No problem matching your present scheme. Your patchwork shower curtain contains all the colors of the rainbow. One more way of trying to save money.

Gwen Nichols

Dear Heloise:

Here is my helpful hint for putting pie crust into a pie pan.

Roll dough on floured wax paper 1 1/2" larger than pan.

Wow!

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I had silver candle holders and no polish to make them sparkle. I didn't want to take time to run to the store. Company was coming, so I grabbed the tube to toothpaste, dampened a cloth and put toothpaste on it and shined away. Result? They sparkle and also have a delicate scent as well for a while.

Mrs. Stephen Nash

I had never thought of using toothpaste on my candle holders, but I do use it on my jewelry. I have some lovely sterling silver pendant earrings that tarnish between bracelets. Thanks a million for your great idea.

Nothing Warms the Heart (And Tummy) Like Turkey Soup

Turkey is becoming more popular all the time on American menus. And happily, turkey prices are lower than for many meats. After the main meal of the roast bird, there's nothing quite like good homemade Turkey Soup.

The American consumer was delighted to discover at Thanksgiving that one food item had actually gone down in price! And considering it was holiday time, it was an important food at that—Tom Turkey himself. Many markets sold turkeys as much as 20 cents a pound under last year's prices. On a 20-pound bird, this meant saving of $4.00 — money that would cover some of the Thanksgiving menu extras. Turkey is a good meat to enjoy all through the coming months.

Turkeys are produced now in almost all the states, and are available pretty much the year round. They are a good, economical buy; of course, the larger the bird the smaller the price per pound. But there is little waste — so much of the turkey is good solid meat — and the best is yet to come in the form of delicious second-day treats. The word "leftover" just doesn't do justice to the number of tasty recipes that can be prepared with turkey after the main feast.

There are few things quite as good as homemade soup. The aroma wafting around the kitchen will start both big and little mouths to watering. If you prefer barley to rice in your turkey soup add another 30 minutes to the simmering time at the end of the recipe instructions.

Ben Franklin is known to have disputed the choice of the bald eagle for the insignia of the United States. "I wish the Bald Eagle had not been chosen as the Representation of our Country; he is a Bird of bad moral Character . . . The turkey is . . . a much more original native of America."

Well, one thing is sure: he is far more edible!

Turkey Soup

Turkey Broth:
1 turkey carcass
8 cups water
1 cup chopped celery with leaves
1 onion, sliced
1/2 cup chopped carrots
1 bay leaf
4 sprigs parsley
2 whole cloves
1/4 teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
1/2 teaspoon dried leaf thyme

Turkey Soup:
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/2 cup chopped celery with leaves
1 cup sliced pared carrots
6 cups reserved turkey broth
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
3 cups cut-up cooked turkey
2 tablespoons uncooked regular rice

In a large kettle combine all ingredients for turkey broth. Cover and simmer 2 hours. Strain. Remove turkey meat from carcass (about 3 cups), cut in pieces and set aside. In a large saucepan melt butter, add celery and carrots, and cook 10 minutes. Add reserved turkey broth, salt, Tabasco, turkey and rice. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 30 minutes.

YIELD: 6 servings.

Finally . . . A Tasty Brunch for Cholesterol Watchers

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Brunches are very popular. Those who enjoy eating but must watch their cholesterol count won't be left out this year. They can eat such treats as special egg dishes, muffins, French toast, cakes and pancakes when these are made with cholesterol-free egg substitutes and skim milk.

Scrambled Eggs With

occasionally until set. For each serving, spoon 1/4 of scrambled egg on a toasted muffin half. Generously tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Gradually stir in 1 cup skim milk.

1 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
1/4 cup flour

inch skillet. Cover tightly. Hold over very low heat just until firm to the touch, about 15 minutes. Cool. Remove from skillet in large pieces. Cut into small cubes. Melt margarine in saucepan over medium heat. Add celery and green pepper and saute 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Blend in flour, salt and curry powder. Gradually stir in skim milk. Bring mixture to a boil, stirring constantly. Simmer 1 minute. Fold in diced eggs and pimiento; heat through. Serve on toasted English muffin halves, with remaining muffin halves on side. Makes 6 servings.

Potato Pancakes

1/2 cup cholesterol-free egg substitute
3 cups cubed raw potatoes
1 medium sized onion, cut up
2 tablespoons flour
1 1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon white pepper

Cook over low-heat stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil.

Eggs in Curry Sauce

2 cups cholesterol-free egg substitute
1/4 cup margarine

1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon curry powder
3 cups skim milk
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
6 Toasted English muffins
Pour cholesterol-free egg substitute into a heavy 10-

Mushroom Sauce

4 teaspoons margarine
2 cups cholesterol-free egg substitute
8 toasted English muffins
4 broiled tomato halves
Mushroom Sauce
Heat margarine in a 10-inch skillet over low heat. Add cholesterol-free egg substitute. Begin to stir when edges start to set. Stir only spoon mushroom sauce over eggs. Serve with remaining muffin half and broiled tomato. Makes 4 servings.

WHOLER THAN WHOLE WHEAT

NEW ARNOLD WHEAT BERRY LOAF

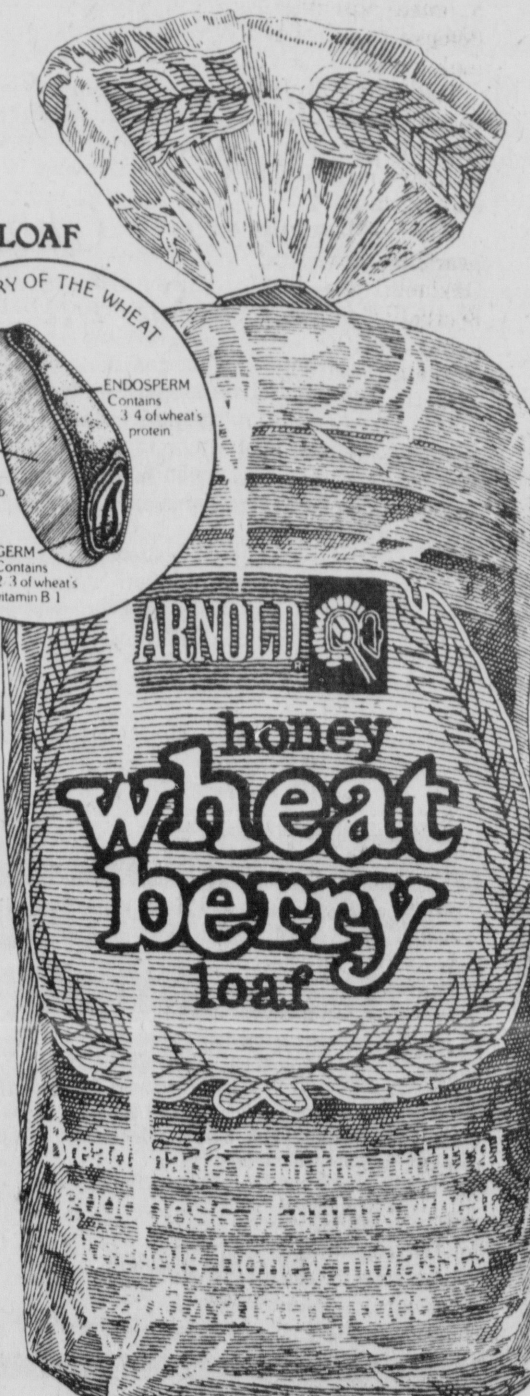

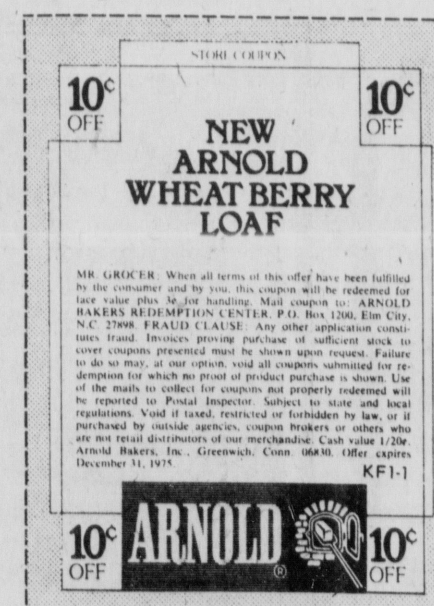

For people who want a whole new experience in wheat bread, we've got some terrific news: Arnold Wheat Berry Loaf.

It's made not just with whole wheat flour, but also with lots of real wheat kernels or "berries."

The berries aren't ground, they're cracked—with their nutritious bran and wheat germ intact. You can feel them in each crunchy bite. And taste them in every nutty-delicious mouthful.

Arnold Wheat Berry Loaf. Made with honey, molasses, raisin juice, and no artificial preservatives. It's the berries.

You get more than one pound — you get 20 full ounces — so you get more value, too.

Women Progress In NCAA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Women's sports on national campuses had come a little way, baby, today at the convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The all-male executive council of the NCAA came out strongly in favor of a pilot program encouraging national team championship competition for women in 11 sports on the same scale that now exists for men's sports.

The council advocated that national women's championships be conducted this year for track and field and tennis to be followed in subsequent years by nine other sports. Progressively these would be: cross country, basketball, golf, field hockey, gymnastics, softball, badminton, skiing and volleyball.

The move came as the delegates to the convention honored President Ford with their highest award before starting to vote on a formidable number of amendments aimed at solving economic problems besetting university and college athletic departments and possibly cracking down on recruiting and other ethical abuses.

Ford was honored by the NCAA as the winner of the Theodore Roosevelt award for his contributions to American sports at lunch prior to the convention's first voting session.

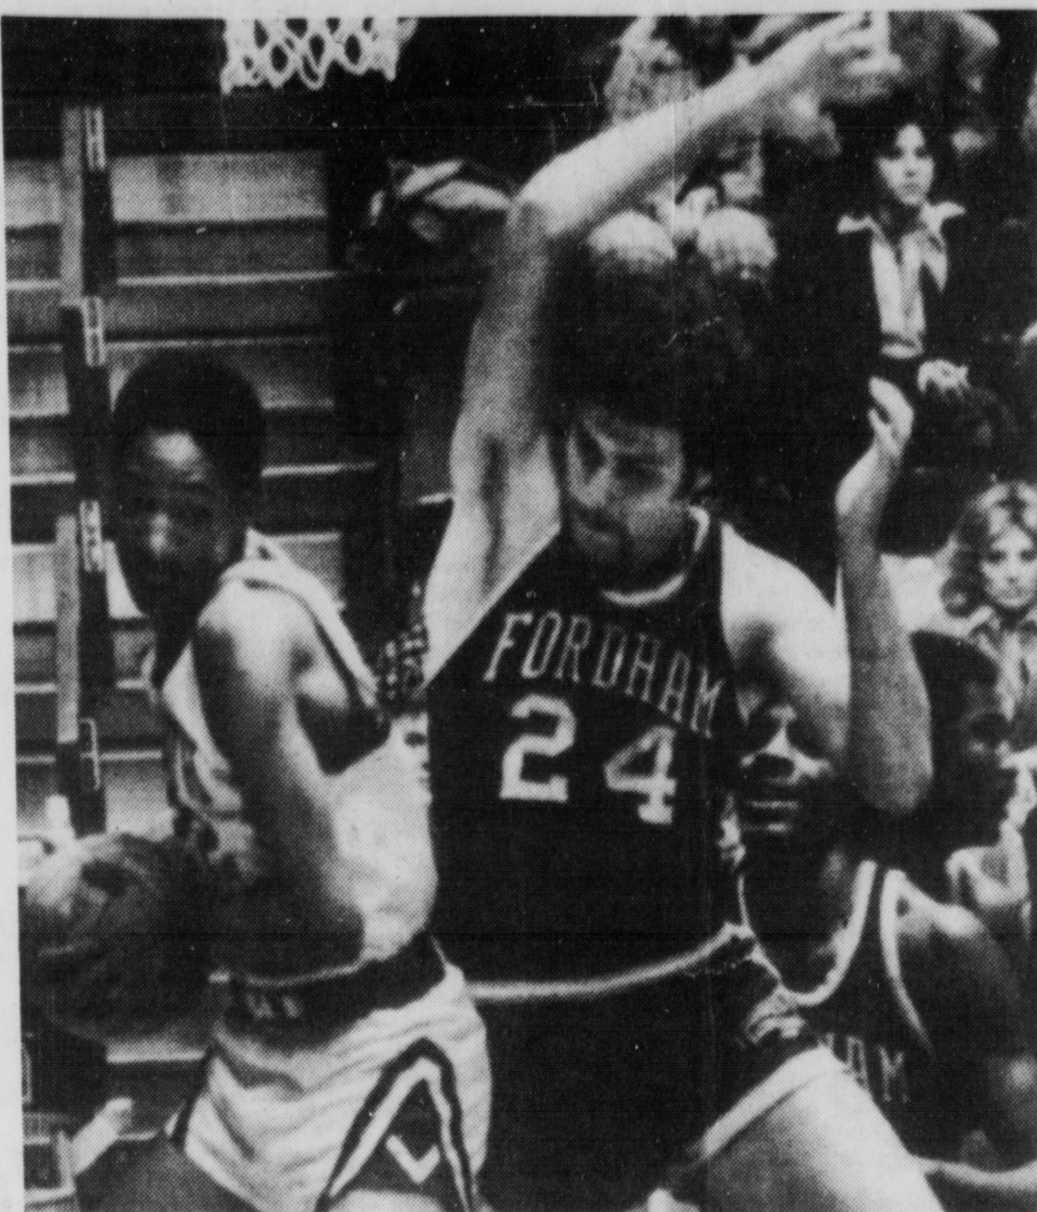

In announcing Monday that the council was urging the women's championships, David Swank of Oklahoma, a council member, said the equal rights movement means that colleges, "will have to offer intercollegiate championship competition for women compatible to that provided men."

He also predicted that college recruiting of women athletes is inevitable in the future: "I believe recruiting already is beginning for women."

Before taking up floor consideration of a number of controversial proposals, the NCAA mounted a broadscale attack on the U.S. Olympic committee on both the legal and legislative fronts.

Attorneys for the NCAA disclosed Monday that they have filed a federal court suit which challenges moves by the USOC last month to set up a system of compulsory arbitration for settling jurisdictional disputes over the makeup of U.S. teams in international games.

An NCAA committee also urged President Ford to set up a commission to review the Olympic committee's operations.

Reunited Spartans Triumph

Michigan State's basketball team stopped fighting among its own players Monday night, and that was bad news for Ohio State.

The Buckeyes happened to be Michigan State's first opponent since Saturday's suspension of 10 black players and their reinstatement on Sunday and the Spartans won the Big Ten game, 88-84, at home.

Lindsay Hairston and Terry Furlow, two of the players who missed Saturday's 52-point loss to Indiana in which Michigan State used mostly junior varsity players, combined for 45 points against Ohio State.

Hairston, the team captain, scored 26, and Furlow added 19.

Jeff Tropf, a white freshman who was the only active player not suspended in what Coach Gus Ganakas called a "lovers' quarrel," scored six points and led his team with 11 rebounds.

"The problem is rectified, as far as the coach and players are concerned," Ganakas said. "Outside of here, they'll be talking about this for years."

The victory gave Michigan State a 7-3 record while Ohio

State dropped to 6-6. The Buckeyes were led by Craig Taylor's 22 points and the 21

Local Contests Are Postponed

KINGSTON Today's snowfall took its toll on all area scholastic sporting events.

In the Dutchess County Scholastic League, the Kingston at Saugerties basketball game was postponed until Wednesday at 4 p.m. as was the Poughkeepsie at Lourdes contest. Roosevelt at Spackenkill, Arlington at Beacon, and Ketcham at John Jay were still in doubt as of 10 a.m. this morning.

In the Ulster County Athletic League, Coleman at Marlboro basketball was put off until Wednesday night. Walkkill at Pine Bush, Onteora at Rondout, New Paltz at Fallsburgh, Ellenville at Red Hook, and Liberty at Highland basketball, and Pine Bush at Walkkill, Onteora at Rondout, Fallsburgh at New Paltz, and Red Hook at Ellenville wrestling were off with no new dates immediately set.

by Bill Andreas. Meanwhile, Indiana, the nation's new No. 1 team, beat No. 11 Michigan 90-76 at Ann Arbor in a meeting of last year's Big 10 co-champions.

Kentucky, ranked ninth, whipped Georgia 96-77; No. 13 Arizona barely got by Northern Arizona 78-77; No. 14 Marquette topped San Diego State 58-54, and 16th-ranked South Carolina topped Fordham 94-67.

Steve Green scored 26 points, Scott May 20 and John Laskowski 19 for Indiana, which raised its record to 13-0 this season. Michigan, 9-2, which saw a 17-game home court winning streak snapped, got 18 points from center C. J. Kupec.

Kevin Grevey scored 32 points, 18 of them in the second half, to lead Kentucky past Georgia, but Arizona had to overcome 20-point efforts by David Benning and Nate Payne to hold off the upset bid of seven-time loser Northern Arizona.

Scores of other major games included: LSU 92 Florida 91, Kansas 79 St. Louis 72, Tulane 84 SMU 80, Houston 86 Dayton 85, Texas Tech 70 Oklahoma State 62.

SPORTS / TODAY

THE DAILY FREEMAN, KINGSTON, N.Y., TUESDAY, JANUARY 7, 1975 17

Ratings Don't Phase Knight

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Bobby Knight doesn't think it's all that big a deal for his Indiana team to be rated No. 1.

"It's a comedy until the main attraction in March," is how Knight put it Monday night after Indiana had mashed Michigan, 90-76, in their rematch of last year's Big Ten co-champions.

"I wouldn't minimize it as far as the kids are concerned," he said. "But I don't care where we are ranked, it gives the incentive to the other team."

"That's an excellent basketball team," Coach John Orr of the Wolverines said after his team's 17-game home court winning streak was terminated.

"That's as good a Big Ten team as I've ever seen," Orr said. "They're as good as (Jerry) Lucas and those guys at Ohio State when I was assistant coach at Wisconsin."

Steve Green, the Hoosiers' 6-foot-7 senior forward, scored 26 points while his 6-foot-7 junior wingmate, Scott May, added 20. John Laskowski scored 19 in his usual role as the first man off the bench.

The top-rated Hoosiers are now 13-0 this season, 2-0 in the conference, and have a 16-game winning streak that is the longest in the nation.

Michigan, 2-1 in the Big Ten, slipped to 9-2 overall. The Wolverines received 18 points from senior center C. J. Kupec, 15 from sophomore guard Steve Grote, and 13 from sophomore forward John Robinson.

"When they got us down last year we couldn't overcome it," Knight said, referring to the big halftime lead the Hoosiers blew last year in the first meeting of the teams. Indiana won at home then Michigan took the neutral-court playoff to decide the NCAA tournament representative.

"I thought that was the key," Knight said. "When they got us down 12-6 we came back."

Sophomore center Kent Benson hit two sweeping hooks and one fadeaway jump shot from the side as the Hoosiers scored eight straight.

They reeled off nine in a row to move from a 22-21 lead with 8:45 left in the first half into the eventual 47-36 margin they enjoyed at halftime.

The closest Michigan could come in the second half was nine points, 49-40, and even when Benson drew his fourth foul with 16:29 to play and sat out the remainder of the half it hardly showed in Indiana's attack.

"If you can exert some patience in spots like that," Knight said of the Hoosiers' "in-close" offense in the second half, "you'll get some easier and better shots."

"In order for us to give them a real game," Orr said, "we'd need two or three days' preparation. This was our third game in five days and we had one hour of preparation."

"Unfortunately," he moaned, "when we go back to Bloomington to play them, it's the same thing. I'm not making excuses for my team—that's a fine team."

"I said before the season they had the best team in the country."

Wilson Was Intoxicated

HOUSTON (UPI) — Don Wilson's Houston Astro teammates remember the pitcher as a fierce competitor they could count on and as a friend.

"He was a tremendous competitor on and off the field," outfielder Bob Watson said Monday. "He was the guy we looked to for leadership. I really felt this year he was going to be the leader of our ballclub."

"He will be sorely missed," Wilson, 29, and his five-year-old son, Alexander, died Sunday of carbon monoxide poisoning. Wilson was found in his garage, slumped over in the front seat of his luxury car. The fumes from the engine seeped into the house where Alexander was asleep.

Wilson's wife, Bernice, 27, and nine-year-old daughter, Denise, also were overcome. Doctors said today Mrs. Wilson is in fair condition, but Denise is in a coma and in critical condition.

An autopsy report released Monday said Wilson's blood had an alcohol content of .167. The legal percentage for drunkenness is

.10. "For the purpose of driving he was over one and a half times drunk or under the influence," Dr. Joseph Jachimczyk said. "He would have been booked for driving while intoxicated."

Police hoped to question Mrs. Wilson, who also suffered a bruised jaw, to determine what happened. Police theorize the deaths were accidental.

Wilson, a righthander known for his fastball, spent his entire nine-season career with the Astros. His pitching record in the majors included two no-hit games. He won 10 games and lost 13 last season.

"Don went out of his way to look out for me," Astro pitcher Tom Griffin said. "You might say he took me under his wing. He was a good human being, a generous person, a nice person."

Memorial services for Wilson were scheduled for Thursday. He probably will be buried in his native California.

Pirates Eye McDowell

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — General Manager Joe L. Brown of the Pittsburgh Pirates admitted today he was interested in obtaining the services of southpaw Sam McDowell, released Monday by the New York Yankees.

Brown said he had met with McDowell last week and would "like to hear from him again."

McDowell, who lives in suburban Monroeville, said he was talking with four clubs, including the Pirates.

"I don't believe in negotiating in the newspapers," the 32-year-old lefthander said. "I was expecting my release from the Yankees. In fact, they told me about it a month ago. I'm not through as a pitcher. I'll be in spring training with some club."

McDowell was 1-6 with the Yankees before he left the club in September.

He broke in with the Cleveland Indians in 1961. He later was traded to the San Francisco Giants and then sold to the Yankees in 1973.

His lifetime record is 138-127 with 2,401 strikeouts and a 3.15 earned run average.

Steelers and Vikings Get Down to Business

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The pictures have been taken, the on-the-field interviews granted and now it's time for both the Pittsburgh Steelers and Minnesota Vikings to get down to some serious training for Sunday's Super Bowl.

Both clubs went through informal workouts Monday but a noted absentee from the Steelers' brief practice was defensive end Dwight White who was hospitalized Sunday night with stomach cramps and muscle spasms in his back.

The 6-foot-4, 255-pound White, who along with Joe Greene, L. C. Greenwood and Ernie Holmes comprise the Steelers' ferocious front four, was reported resting comfortably and was expected to be released from the hospital early today.

The Steelers, who earned their first Super Bowl appearance ever with playoff victories over Buffalo and Oakland, were the No. 1 defensive team in the American Football Conference. In addition to allowing the fewest points and the least yards, Pittsburgh also led the entire National Football League in quarterback sacks with 52, with the front four accounting for 40 of them.

"Going against that Steeler defense will certainly be a challenge for us," said Vikings quarterback Fran Tarkenton. "It figures to be a disciplined game with their defense matched against ours. Pittsburgh is a lot like us on defense—big and strong. Nobody's gonna run up and down the field Sunday. The team with consistency will come out the winner."

Tarkenton, who led the National Football Conference in passing yardage with 2,598 yards and threw 17 touchdown passes, will try to keep the Steelers' front four off balance by mixing in his famed scrambling along with his passing.

"I've gotten to him (Tarkenton) three or four times during my six years in the league," Greenwood said. "But he's always completing passes with me hanging on. Tarkenton

Court Frees Stabler

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Ruling the Birmingham Americans of the World Football League violated their three-year pact with Oakland Raiders quarterback Ken Stabler, a circuit court judge Monday released Stabler from the contract.

Circuit Court Judge William C. Barber ruled the Americans, by not paying $30,000 of the $100,000 promised the National Football League star in the first year of his contract, violated the pact. Barber said Stabler was "free from any obligation under any terms of this contract."

Fran's a Scrambler, Even on Paper

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Fran Tarkenton sat down the other day and wrote a letter to Catfish Hunter, not as one millionaire to another, but as one country boy warning another about all the perils that can befall him coming to the big, bad city.

"Not really," laughs the Minnesota Vikings' Super Bowl quarterback, referring to the contents in his letter to the New York Yankees' super paid pitcher, whom he has never even met.

"Catfish and I both come from the same general area and we both were brought up on black-eyed peas, collard greens and chilis," Tarkenton goes on. "I wrote him a note saying he's in the Big Apple now and I think that's terrific. New York is a great sports city, a wonderful place to play ball. The people with the Yankees are good, too. George Steinbrenner is a friend of mine and he's a terrific guy."

Catfish Hunter is originally from Hartford, N.C., and still makes his home there. After what the Yankees gave him to sign, he can buy the whole town—Hartford, not New York. Fran Tarkenton, a one-man conglomerate and an authentic millionaire in his own right, was born in Richmond, Va., raised in Athens, Ga., where he has spent most of his 34 years and now lives in Atlanta.

He had quite a taste of New York, playing five years there for the Giants from 1967 through 1971 before they traded him to the Vikings, so he's in a good position to tell Hunter what it's like being a professional sports headliner in Fun City.

"It's fine," says Tarkenton. "It can be an awful lot of fun."

So why did he ask Giants' owner Wellington Mara to be traded three years ago?

"I didn't actually ask to be traded," corrects Tarkenton. "No in that way. What I did was tell Wellington during the last week of the 1971 season I didn't think we had the organization to win with in the future. I told him I knew he had a lot of decisions to make, and if he was thinking of me coming back the following year, we'd have to sit down and talk."

"If he was thinking of trading me, I told him I would only be interested in going to a contender. He told me he thought the Giants had an organization he felt they could win with. Obviously he was wrong."

Tarkenton isn't kicking with the way the deal worked out. Since coming to the Vikes, this is his second trip to the Super Bowl, and he hopes he and his ball club will come out better against Pittsburgh Sunday than they did against Miami in last year's Super Bowl contest.

For a long time the Steelers were a great deal like the Giant teams Tarkenton quarterbacked, meaning they were losers, but all that has changed and now they're favored to win their first world championship.

"They finally picked the right coach,"

Tarkenton says, alluding to Chuck Noll without naming him. "It's the same thing with this team; Bud Grant has been the key to our situation. Look, somebody's doing something right with Pittsburgh. It's not someone just rolling the dice. Football isn't that kind of game. To prove it, all you have to do is take a team like Baltimore. When they had the (Carroll) Rosenblooms and the (Don) Shulas, they won. Rosenbloom was the catalyst there. It goes back to the same thing I told Wellington Mara—it all depends on the organization."

Is Tarkenton saying then he'd rather play in Minnesota than New York?

"Certainly," he answers. "I'd rather play in Minnesota than in New York. It's a sound organization."

Fran Tarkenton is still a scrambler. Even on paper.

When he wrote Catfish Hunter, he told him there's no place in the world to play like New York.

UCAL Skiing Has Familiar OCS Look

By STEVE KANE

KINGSTON There is a familiar look to the skiing picture in the Ulster County Athletic League. Onteora High, the defending champion, is looking for another set of titles, and New York State champion Brad Davenport returns to defend his crown at Rondout Valley.

The Indians, who won the boys' competition outright and shared the girls' championship with Liberty, lost a couple of strong racers but appear to be deeper than ever. A grand total of 58 candidates turned out for the team making skiing the most popular sport at OCS.

Thomas Lundar, an A.F.S. student, has departed Boiceville, and Art George now lives in Arizona, but the Indians may not miss them. Tony Sears, the son of Belleayre Ski Center director Nelson Sears, heads a parade of 17 tightly bunched racers. Sears is a junior as is Conrad Earnest, Matt Earnest is only a soph but rated third on the team thus far, and freshman Joe Hevesi holds down the No. 2 slot. John Sheehan, a senior, is the OCS captain and the fourth ranked skier.

Behind this group is a small horde packed within a second of the leaders. That kind of depth has Onteora thinking about the Section Nine title.

The Onteora girls are back intact from last year and should be better. Ellen and Barbara Sheehan, Bianca Schaefer and Tracey Jennings will be difficult to break up, and newcomer Pam Viglielmo adds more potential.

The OCS boys were 10-1, and the girls were 8-3 a year ago. The only loss the boys suffered was to non-league foe Windham.

Competition is expected to come from the same places it did last year—Rondout and Fallsburgh in the UCAL and Monticello in Section Nine. The reasons the Ganders may challenge are mostly named Davenport.

Brad heads a boys' squad that looks "fairly good," according to coach Peter Wells. "We have good depth with about 20 boys," Wells said.

The Gander girls are not so blessed. Leslie Davenport, a ninth place finisher in Section Nine last year, is a quality racer, but she has only four teammates to help her get Rondout a winning score. Rondout has been slightly handcapped by having only two on-snow practices so far, and the Ganders had to go to Mohonk, their home course, is dry.

Onteora has a non-league match against Windham Wednesday to prepare for Thursday's league opener at New Paltz. Also on Thursday, Rondout will face Ellenville, and Fallsburgh will face Liberty.

Home courses are unchanged. OCS is at Belleayre, New Paltz uses Ski Minne, Fallsburgh is at The Pines, Ellenville races at Mt.

Cathalia and Liberty is at Big Vanilla.

SKI TALES... OCS' Joel Tomson mentioned possibility of creating "Catskill Cup," an invitational race involving the mountain area schools... Coleman may be next school to join UCAL skiing. Ad Bill Dubois says chances are "very good," and noted Statesmen have already formed a club and will race about six times this year... other possible future league members are Windham and Hunter... Section Nine races scheduled for February 24 (boys) and 26 (girls).

Always a rare commodity in area bowling, the 200 average remains a rarified plateau. According to the latest spot check of bulletin boards, Chris Schick, the best of the younger crop of bowlers, is the only 200-man around, with a 200-35 average in the International League, the top wheel in town.

A dozen bowlers are averaging 190 or better in the International. Bill Noreika is a distant runnerup to Schick with 197. Al North and Jack Ferraro are tied at 196. Bob (Tall) Smith has 195, Steve Ferraro 193, Charles Manfro 192, Joe Mannello Jr., Ed Biro and Herb Petersen are tied at 191, while Angie Fondino and Denny Bart have 190 each. Incidentally, Herb Petersen is scorching the 9-G lanes in Red Hook with a 214 average in the doubles classic.

Only four women bowlers are in the star plateau of 170, according to our survey. Joan Jameson has the top mark of 178.45 in 51 games in the Bowlerama Quads, where Barb Van Keuren the 600 Club champion, is runnerup with 173.28.

Arlene Wilson's 173.26 for 48 games leads in the Tri-Major, a women's circuit in its first season. Louise Colombino is runnerup with 170.27.

Lonnie Zimmerman of the New Paltz Tavern League with 755 and Joan Jameson (641) are the individual leaders in the Top Ten at this writing. Chris Schick has a 720, Jim Suskie 718 and Ed Biro 709.

The women's Top Ten is made up entirely of 600 series. Trailing Mrs. Jameson in the standings are Ann Cummings 636, Pat Van Gaasbeck 632, Helen Reck 624 and Kathy DeCicco 622.

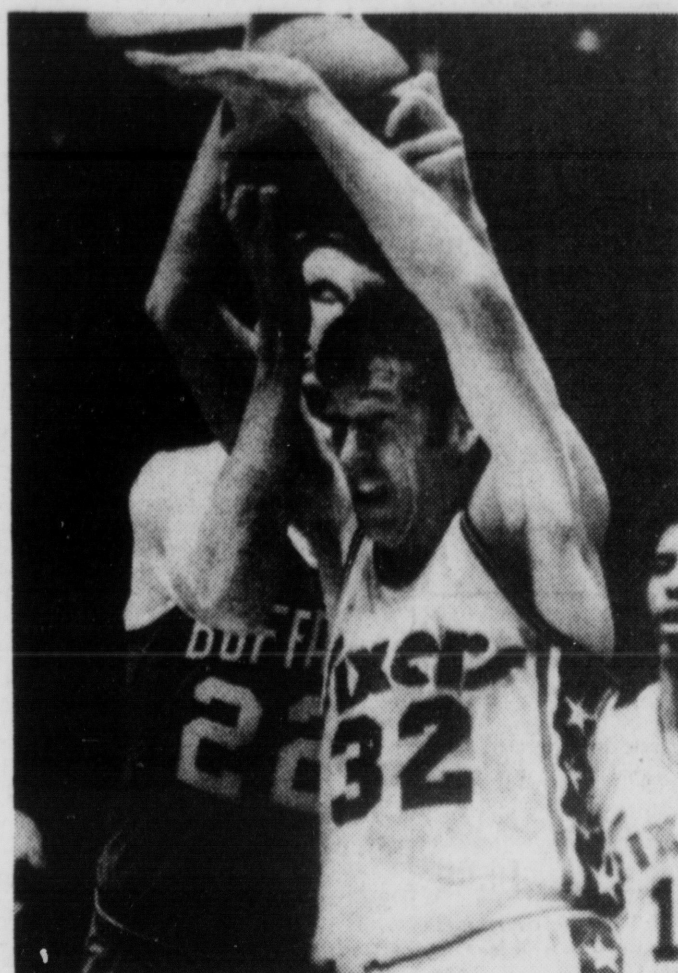

Four bowlers are tied with 279 in the single department, Don Van Keuren, Charles Carlson, Willie Traviglione and Lonnie Zimmerman. Gloria Nagele leads the women with 256 and Joan Jameson had 255.

THE TOP TEN BOWLERS

MEN	WOMEN
1. Lonnie Zimmerman, NP 755	1. Joan Jameson, Quads, 641
2. Chris Schick, Int. 720	2. Anne Cummings, Quads, 636
3. Jim Suskie, Int. 718	3. P. Van Gaasbeck, MM 632
4. Ed Biro, Int. 709	4. Helen Reck 624
5. Ron Bruck, CM 691	5. Kathy DeCicco, 622
6. James Pirro, S.Mix 681	6. Barbara Belkowski, H-W 617
7. Frank Riddle, Vols 681	7. Barb Van Keuren, Quad 612
8. John Gaddis 679	8. Paula Tenkowski 608
9. Chris Schick 679	9. Rose Schatzel, Quads 604
10. Lou Piculastro, Int. 674	10. Jackie Schoenbecker 603

In team shooting, Greco Brothers of the International League own both highs of 1064 and 3056. Their 3040 is second best, while Capri 400 boasts 3022. Augustine Insurance leads the women's shooting in four-member teams with 822 and 2243. In the miscellaneous area, and we don't vouch for its completeness, the tripartite shooters to date include Bob Petersen (197), Dick Stolz (199), Lynn Marburger (108), Joanne Thorne (142).

Mildred Buddington is credited with an all-spare game of 161. Bonnie Tiano has a 7-10 split conversion to his credit, and Don Lawson cleaned off the "double pinochle" split, 4-6-7-10.

Cunningham "Feeling Great"

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Billy Cunningham, who tallied 24 points Monday night to push the Philadelphia 76ers to a 10195 win over Buffalo, said he has been "feeling great" the last few games.

"I have really been feeling great the last four or five games," Cunningham said. "I felt as good as ever in the last two weeks."

The Sixers, who led by only 74-71 entering the last quarter, were also paced by All-Star forward Steve Mix, who racked up 23 points.

Mix scored 17 of his points in the second half as Philadelphia gained its 16th victory against 22 losses this season.

Philadelphia coach Gene Shue said, "Mix making the All-Star team is a great success story."

The Sixers were ahead by only a point at 82-81 with 8:23 left, but then spurred for 10 straight points to grab a 92-81 advantage with 5:52 remaining.

With just 2:18 remaining, Philadelphia took its biggest lead at 98-85. Buffalo then battled back for eight straight points to make it 98-93 with 35 seconds left. But Mix came back with a free throw and Cunningham with a field goal to clinch the win.

Cunningham had 17 rebounds and nine assists and Mix had 12 rebounds.

Buffalo, which now has a 2315 record, fell a full game behind Boston in the battle for first place in the Atlantic Division.

Jim McMillian and Randy Smith had 23 points each to pace the Braves and Jack Marin had 22.

Bob McAdoo had 19 points for the Braves before fouling out with 5:14 left in the game.

"Lee, Ellis and Mix did a real good job on McAdoo," Shue said. "He's a great player down the stretch so it doesn't hurt when he fouls out."

Doug Collins scored 18 points and Fred Carter 15 for the Sixers.

In the American Basketball Association, the San Antonio

Spurs piled up 42 points in the final period to rout the Utah Stars 113-92.

James Silas, hitting 12 of 15 shots, had 17 points in the final quarter to finish with a game high 36 points. Rich

Jones tossed in 26 points in the second half and finished the night with 31.

Moses Malone fouled out for the Stars and had 18 points. Ron Boone led the Stars with 22 points.

Ali — $10 Million Man

NEW YORK (UPI) — Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali put a $10 million price tag on his services for 1975 Monday and said the boxing world would have to start beating the drums for a name replacement the following year.

"I'll fight anywhere for that kind of money," Ali said. His last bout was in Zaire when he took the heavyweight crown from George Foreman. "Russia can even be an appealing place if they are willing to pay to see me."

It was reported that Ali had all but signed a contract to fight Denver heavyweight Ron Lyle at Madison Square Garden on March 24, with a reported $2 million guaranteed the slicktalking fighter to defend the crown.

One source said the agreement was scheduled to be finalized Monday, but a hitch developed when there was talk of Chuck Wepner substituting for Lyle.

Ali was one of 33 sports figures named as nominees in balloting by sports writers and broadcasters for the Gillette Cavalcade of Champions in 11 categories. The winners in each field will have a $5,000 grant presented in his or her name to a youth fitness or sports program of the winner's designation.

Shipley Is New San Diego Coach

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Beryl Shipley took command of the troubled American Basketball Association San Diego Conquistadors Monday a day after Alex Groza quit the head coaching spot.

Shipley, 48, had 15 winning seasons in 16 years at Southwestern Louisiana University before he became a coach without a team after the NCAA discovered recruiting violations. The NCAA banned basketball at SW Louisiana for two years after the 1972-73 season in which the Cajuns ranked seventh nationally.

Groza doubled up as coach and general manager of the financially feeble ball club after Wilt Chamberlain retired as coach at the beginning of the season. Groza will retain the generally manager's job.

Shipley had been negotiating with the Q's for the past two weeks and signed a contract Sunday.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (NEA)—The 20th annual NEA All-Pro team announced today by Newspaper Enterprise Association proves again that in the eyes of the professionals, who pick them, it's what they do on the field, today, that counts.

And so on this 1974 assemblage there are half a dozen of the National Football League's who have never before been seriously considered for All-Pro honors.

They are such as Cliff Branch, the wide receiver of the Oakland Raiders, who hadn't even been a starter before '74; Mel Gray, the swift receiver of the St. Louis Cardinals, lost in the crowd for three years; guard Ed White of the Minnesota Vikings, the strongest man on a team noted for physicality and yet largely unrecognized.

You can add Lawrence McCutcheon, the fine fullback of the Los Angeles Rams, a taxi squadder just two years ago; Fred Dryer, the Rams' defensive end, supposed to be too light to rate with the best and, finally, Tony Greene, the sparkling safety of the Buffalo Bills, who figured to be a spare at corner back before the season.

The pro scouts of all the clubs were consulted to assemble the following teams:

Winning Coach About to Retire

TYLER, Tex. (UPI) — Floyd Wagstaff, who has won more games than any other junior college basketball coach, is retiring from coaching to become fulltime athletic director at Tyler Junior College.

"There comes a time when everybody has to quit. Nobody looks forward to that but I thought it would be a good time to get out of coaching," said Wagstaff, who will be 64 next week.

The TJC board accepted Wagstaff's resignation Thursday and appointed assistant basketball coach Randall Misteard to replace him.

Case of Too Much 'THINKING'

By Oswald & James Jacoby
 Remember the misspelled slogan, "THINK"?

South played dummy's jack of spades at trick one. East rose with the ace; paused a while to do some "thinking". Then he led back the six of spades. After that friendly return South had no trouble collecting two spades, four clubs and three diamonds. He even got in a heart trick at the finish, but he didn't need it.

If East had done some constructive thinking instead of his garbled version he would have said to himself, "South has opened a no-trump without the ace-king-queen or jack of hearts. Would he make that bid without one of the four top spades also? Probably not!"

That would have marked South with the king of spades and made a spade return most unattractive.

Then East would shift to the deuce of hearts. West's 10 would force the king or queen from dummy. Later on West would get in with the king of diamonds and lead a heart to his partner. East would cash three heart tricks and South's three no-trump contract would have gone to never-never land.

Americans Not Rushing to the Great Gold Auction

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government held its great gold auction Monday and proved one thing: Most Americans find gold about as attractive an investment as a frozen porkbelly.

Most of the 209 bidders were foreigners. The bulk of the American bids were from jewelers. Of the few ordinary Americans who participated, six or seven submitted bids of $1 an ounce, which were not taken seriously.

Only 38 per cent of the 2 million ounces of gold offered for auction from the U.S. Treasury was sold, most of that at prices lower than the world market.

At first glance, the auction appeared a dismal failure. Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, who sponsored it, was delighted.

He didn't really want Americans to buy much of the stuff.

"Gold is just not a good investment for individuals," he said.

Last Tuesday, the government lifted its 41-year ban on Americans owning gold.

Officials feared that with the stock market declining, Americans might rush into the international gold market in search of security against inflation, paying prices artificially bid up by speculators, suffering losses later when the prices fell and weakening the balance of payments in the process.

The auction was held to provide a safer outlet on home ground for American gold fever if it materialized.

The Treasury Department sold 750,000 ounces at a minimum price of $153 an ounce. Since the gold was sold in 400-ounce bricks, a winning bidder had to pay at least $61,200.

The highest bid of $185 an ounce was made by the Herff Jones Co., an Indianapolis ring manufacturer. The top bid by an individual, $181, was submitted by Robert W. Holt, a 68-year-old gas station owner in Federalburg, Md.

Most bids came by mail, but a few bidders showed up in person. Eugene A. D'Onofrio, 33, a Baltimore gas station owner, came wearing maroon slacks and a black leather jacket and plunked down a six-inch-thick wad of cash with his offer of $120 an ounce—not enough.

"I thought I'd take a gamble," he said.

Officials said, however, D'Onofrio's offer wasn't high enough for serious consideration.

Germany's Dresden Bank, for itself and customers, submitted almost half the offers. The number of successful bids will not be determined until late today.

Simon was obviously pleased that Americans had not rushed into gold, which pays no interest or dividends to its buyers, and removes money from circulation for industry and consumers.

He said the auction "illustrates the demand for gold in the United States is not strong ... speculators who drove the price up are going to be taking some losses."

"The American people," Simon said, "are a good deal smarter than some people gave them credit."

Moynihan Raps Administration

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Outgoing U.S. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan has accused Washington of touching off a wave of anti-Americanism by its handling of a decision to build a refueling base in the Indian Ocean.

"Never in the annals of history has the United States offended so many, so much and over so little," the flamboyant diplomat said Monday in an interview.

Moynihan said the United States was "pretty clumsy" in its handling of a decision to turn a communications outpost on the atoll of Diego Garcia into a refueling base for American ships.

"I have been appalled by the way we've gone about it and so has the United States Congress been appalled," he said.

He said, however, his final talks with Premier Indira Gandhi left him more optimistic about the future of U.S.-Indian relations than he has been in weeks.

He said Washington decided to proceed with plans for the refueling post despite a U.N. resolution declaring the Indian Ocean a "zone of peace."

He said the move touched off a heavy flow of cables from countries bordering on the Indian Ocean. "At one period we had cables on this issue going back and forth between 42 capitals," he said.

"But we made no effort to explain why we wanted to be there or what our needs were," he said. "We made no effort to win acquiescence—not to say that we could have won it."

He said congressional opposition has forced President Ford, in order to gain an $18.1 million appropriation for the move, "to tell the whole world that flyspeck called Diego Garcia is necessary to the security of America."

Moynihan, who flies to Hong Kong today, is scheduled to make a brief trip to China before returning to Harvard University after two years as ambassador. He will be succeeded next month by former Attorney General William B. Saxbe.

The ambassador said he agreed during his last meeting with Mrs. Gandhi "about a succession of things and disagreed about other things—but the agreeing was predominant."

"But there is still a large, generalized suspicion of American intentions here," he said. "There is a free floating anxiety which settles on this or on that issue."

Congress Keeping Tabs on CIA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress has always had the authority to keep tabs on the Central Intelligence Agency, but only now—with President Ford's investigation into domestic snooping—does it seem to be doing anything.

Published reports in the past month have said that the CIA illegally spied on Americans at home. One story even said that three House members, who voted on CIA appropriations without knowing much about them, were among the targets.

Four subcommittees have power to oversee the CIA. One in each chamber is part of the appropriations committee and the other is related to armed services. Their meetings are secret, without minutes or reports, and they are few and far between.

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of two of the subcommittees, gave his view of oversight in a November, 1971, Senate speech. "You have to make up your mind that you are going to have an intelligence agency and protect it as such and shut your eyes some and take what's coming," he said.

Bill after bill has been introduced, but few were passed that actually changed congressional power over the CIA. One that did was the Foreign Assistance Act, signed by President Ford Dec. 30. It forbids the agency from conducting operations "other than those intended solely for obtaining necessary intelligence."

Anything else, such as secret military operations, must be approved by the President, and Congress must be told.

Sen. John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., wrote CIA Director William Colby, asking if all the "other" operations had stopped. "We assume that if this is not the case, the committee will be notified forthwith and the requisite report will be submitted," he said.

Colby, Sparkman continued, should be sure to inform Congress of any "gray area."

Rep. Lucien Nedzi, chairman of the House intelligence subcommittee, said "historically, that is probably true," when asked Sunday if Congress did not watch the CIA very well.

Now, since his subcommittee, and a similar one in the Senate, has the authority to watch the agency, "I think we've had very adequate oversight."

Nixon Seeking Tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon's attorneys say a law giving the government control of his White House tapes could have been used during the attempted impeachment of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas to force Douglas to disclose his most private writings.

The lawyers filed a two-page motion and 151 pages of affidavits with U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey Monday in seeking a preliminary injunction against enforcement of the law.

They cited the examples of Douglas and of former Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., to support their contention that the law invaded Nixon's privacy. Nixon's lawyers also argued that every other president was given title to his papers, that the new law violates the confidentiality of the presidency and that Nixon's constitutional rights were damaged.

"With the present act as a model, Congress could have appropriated all of Justice Douglas' private writings, diaries, correspondence and political documents to be spread on the public record, thereby satiating the curious as well as his political enemies," Nixon's lawyers said.

Starting Our Second Century.

The year 1975 marks the start of our second century. And the beginning of an exciting and challenging new era in the world of banking. We look forward to meeting the challenges of tomorrow, operating from a stronger base than ever before in our history. As of January first, when our merger with Beacon Savings Bank became effective, we became six offices instead of three, with assets of $195 million. We now serve Ulster, Dutchess and Rockland Counties and are recognized as one of the largest mutual savings banks between New York City and Albany's Capital District. And, soon to open is our Dutchess Mall Office in Fishkill. This is the first consolidated statement of two, long-established banks, now united together as one. It is a good statement. One of which we can be very proud. And grateful. But, we know it is only the beginning. That's another reason we look forward with great anticipation to starting our second century.
